FRENCH WILD TO FIGHT GERMANS

SITUATION GRAVE, ASQUITH ADMITS

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, July 29.—Premier Asquith admitted in the House of Commons this afternoon that "The European stiuation is one of the most extreme gravity." He stated that the British government was not relaxing its efforts to localize the Austro-Servian conflict.

Following the Premier's statement, the Chancellor of the Exhequer announced that the governors of the Bank of England considered it unnecessary at present to call a meeting of bankers regarding the financial situation.

"Europe expects war. The fate of the peace efforts now being made rests with Czar Nicholas of Russia."

This terse summary of the situation that menaces all Europe with a terrible conflict that will involve millions of men and cause billions of dollars of loss was given today by a diplomatic representative of one of the greatest powers of the continent.

Dispatches from all the capitals corroborated his views. Austria and Servia are at war. The aim of the powers striving for peace are now directed to localizing their conflict.

A special session of the British cabinet was called today by Premier Asquith to discuss the situation and decide what further steps England should take to avert the imminent conflagration. Every member of the premier's official family attended the meeting.

While the cabinet was in session it was learned that the Austrian government had notified the British foreign office that no further consideration would be given to the proposal for an ambassadorial conference.

This was the sharpest rebuff that British diplomacy has ever received in its relations with other European powers. It will not lessen England's efforts to avert a catastrophe however. Conversations will be continued with the purpose of localizing the Balkan conflict.

INDICATE LONG STRUGGLE.

Cancellation of the World's Peace Congress, which was to have been held in Vienna in September, indicates a belief on the part of the Austrian officials who had the arrangements in charge that their country will be at war at that time. Peace leaders her were astounded by the action taken at Vienna.

BULLETINS

VIENNA, July 29.—The Militaerische Rundschau report sharp fighting along the river Dina, Servian volunteers attempting to cross the river being resolutely opposed by Austrian frontier troops. Servians, it said, fired on their own river transports by mistake, killing and wounding a number of Servian soldiers.

LONDON, July 29.—Premier Pashitch of Servia notified the Servian legation here today that Austrian troops had fired all Sunday from their positions on the bank of the Danube and had damaged three Servian vessels at Kostolate. The vessels were then seized and the Austrian flag hoisted upon them. The dispatch stated there had been no casualties.

BRUSSELS, July 29.—Three classes of the Belgian militia were ordered to mobilize today.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The stock market opened weak this morning with a heavy selling movement still in force and with declines ranging from 1/8 to 3 1/2 points. Practically al the active stocks were selling und last night's closing prices.

SELIM, Hungary, July 29.—Ser ian and Montenegrin women are enlisting in large numbers to fight, according to reports received here t day. Women recruits have been d tailed to construct earthworks at strategic points.

CZAR IS NOW FOR WAR

300,000 AUSTRIANS IN FIRST ADVANCE

ROME, July 29.—Official dispatches received by the government today from Vienna state that Austria-Hungary has concentrated more than 300,000 men on the Servian border.

The remainder of her vast army will be kept on the northeast frontier to prevent an attack by Russian or Roumanian troops. The forces confronting Servia have been divided into three armies, commanded by General Potierek, General Von Frank and General Von Affenberg.

The three armies, advancing from Sarajevo, Semlin and up the Moravia Valley, will be kept in communication by field telegraph and by aviators who will spy out the enemy's position.

Sign of Peace in a Brisk Rally of Stocks in New York

A significant peace sign today was the rally in prices in the New York stock market, which is now practically doing all the business in securities for the whole world. From weakness this market became comparatively strong, many leading issues rising above Tuesday's final prices. Great attention was given the report that Berliners had resumed buying stocks. This may indicate that Emperor William has decided to work for peace.

BULLETINS

ROME, July 29.—It is reported that the First and Second Naval Squadrons are forming to concentrate at Gaeta, forty miles northwest of Naples.

LONDON, July 29.—Insurance operations at Lloyds against the risks of war included business covering specie shipments by German liners from the United States at five shillings per cent. The normal rate is one shilling.

ROME, July 29.—Authoritative advices received here from Bucharest state that Germany has asked for positive assurances from Roumania of her intentions in connection with the Austro-Servian situation.

PARIS IN WAR FRENZY ON POINCARE'S RETURN

By C. F. BERTELLI,

American Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, July 29.—A great explosion of patriotism marked the return today of President Poincare to Paris. The nation's executive was cheered at towns through which he passed on his journey from Dunkirk, and a similar greeting was given him when he reached the Gare du Nord.

Thousands of men and women lined the streets through which he went from the station to the Elysee Palace. The throngs cheered tumultuously or united in singing the "Marseillaise."

Premier Vivani left the President at the station and went direct to his office, where there soon gathered the ministers of war and marine and general officers of the army.

The people of Paris are mad for war with Germany. They see in a general conflict an opportunity to recover Alsace-Lorraine and wipe out the stain left in 1870.

REPORT MOBILIZATION OF RUSSIAN TROOPS ORDERED

LONDON, July 29.—A Reuter dispatch says:

"Iit is understood that a partial mobilization of Russian troops in Southwest Russia was ordered yesterday, but nevertheless it is still evidently hoped that the European powers will succeed in arranging an understanding between Russia and Austria-Hungary."

CZAR AND KAISER IN COMMUNICATION ON WAR

sent a dispatch to the Czar, it passing in transmission one from the Czar to Berlin.

FRENCH RUSH PLANS TO MOBILIZE ENTIRE ARMY

PARIS, July 29.—Measures for mobilization of the French army are being rapidly completed today. Troops guard all bridges and viaducts along the railway lines. Railroad employes will not be permitted vacations at present.

All the newspapers assert that if France is forced into was she will be well prepared.

WAR CRAZE SWEEPS THE WHOLE OF EUROPE

LONDON, July 29.—Europe is war mad! In every city on the continent throngs of pro-war and anti-war demonstraters parade the streets. The fever of fighting has inflamed the blood of man from St. Petersburg to Paris.

The Czar, Europe believes, will fight! And if he does so will all Europe. This is inevitable. It was the Kaiser who precipitated the Austro-Servian conflict. It is the Czar, Europe believes, who will set a spark to the conflagration that will sweep Europe.

Dispatches from every quarter tell of war preparations. France is mobilizing. Soldiers control the railroads there. Railroad employes are working overtime, under government direction.

Premier Asquith called a special council of the Cabinet today, and the First Fleet of England sailed under sealed orders, commanded by Admiral Callaghan, presumably bound for the North Sea.

Austria sent a brief, sharp note pointedly rebuffing England's suggestion for mediation conferences. Also, the plans for a World's Peace Congress at Vienna in September have been summarily cancelled.

The Czar ordered the mobilization of troops along the German border to the North Sea. Shipping in Russian waters has been warned that war may come. All Russian lighthouses save those at Sebastopol have been extinguished. The railroads have been seized.

"Russia will enforce the integrity of Servia as if it were Russian territory," is the reply today reported made by the Czar to the Kaiser's warning that it would be most disastrous to Europe if Austria and Servia were allowed to settle their trouble without interference.

Word comes from the Russian capital that shipping has been warned Russia is preparing to invade Austria.

All railroads leading to the German and Austro-Hungarian frontiers on the Russian side have been put under complete control of the Russian war officers.

In all Russian ports along the Baltic Sea to the north mines have been placed, and the warning beacons of the lighthouses extinguished.

It has been declared the issuance of orders for a general mobilization of the Russian army should have but one sequel. Berlin dispatches have made it clear that even "partial mobilization" would be immediately answered by a gathering of the war hosts of the Kaiser.

"Nothing could then hold Germany back," was the text of dispatches today.

A strict war censorship exists over all dispatches sent from Austrian and Servian cities.

Announcement of the capture of Belgrade, the former Servian capital, is hourly expected.

This move—which may already have been made—is certain to be the first step toward big fighting, as it will mark the general advance of the Austrian armies of invasion.

One hundred thousand Social Democrats in Berlin held a meeting to protest against the war. The police have forbidden processions by members of this party and are guarding the entrances to all public buildings. Rioting is reported in many German cities.

All railways in Austria were today taken over by the military authorities.

Passenger traffic is reported suspended throughout Austria.

Paris dispatches today declare France is fully prepared for war, in case she should be forced into conflict.

Berlin cables that the Kaiser has called for a special military review.

The Servian forces are reported marching southward toward the River Dana. Volunteers are assembling in force at Leichnik while another division is advancing from Novidazar to the River Lim.

A strong Servian force is reported at Istib, marching down from Northern Montenegro. A brigade with machine guns is at Priepolje.

Wirballen, a frontier station in Russian Poland, has been occupied by a large body of Russians armed with machine guns.

The Paris Matin suggests Russia may consider the arrival of Austrian troops at Belgrade as a cause of war.

The Italian press calls for England's co-operation to prevent a general war.

PLAN TO AVERT WAR IS MADE IN BERLIN

By FREDERICK WERNER,

American Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, July 29.—A suggestion for settling the Austro-Servian dispute that would eliminate the possibility of a struggle between these nations and thus avert all danger of a general European war was made in diplomatic quarters today. It was to the effect that Austria might be prepared to consider proposals by England, France, Italy and Germany to formulate plans for the punishment of Servia in a manner that would satisfy the demands of Austria's prestige.

This suggestion was regarded as of the highest importance in view of the fact that Berlin diplomatic circles are in close touch with those in Vienna, and it was considered possible that the proposal might have come direct ffrom the Austrian foreign office.

The Norddeutscher Allegemeine Zeitung states semi-officially that "the peaceful tone of Russia's communique of yesterday is heartily reciprocated."

$54,125,000 a Day Staggering Cost of General European War

If the war between Austria and Servia involves Germany, England, France, Russia, Italy and Roumania, Dr. Charles Richet, statistician of the University of Paris, estimates that the daily expense of the actual campaign will be over $54,000,000.

Dr. Richet bases his estimates on the assumption that 20,000,000 men will be called to arms, of whom at least half will be sent to the front. On this basis he works out the daily expenditures for the seven powers as follows:

Provisioning of troops	$12,500,000
Feeding of horses	1,000,000
Pay	4,250,000
Wages, arsenals and harbors	1,000,000
Mobilization	2,000,000
Transport of foodstuffs, weapons, etc.	4,000,000
Ammunition—
Infantry	4,000,000
Artillery	1,250,000
Ship artillery	375,000
Fitting out of army	4,000,000
Ambulance service	500,000
Movement of ships	500,000
Deficit in taxes	10,000,000
Support of population without means	6,750,000
Requisitions, damage to towns, bridges, etc.	2,000,000
Total	$54,125,000

If such a war lasted only as long as the brief Franco-Prussian conflict of 1870 the outlay on this basis would exceed $5,000,000,000, irrespective of war indemnities.

FORTUNES ARE LOST AND MADE AS THE PRICE OF WHEAT SOARS

CHICAGO, July 29.—While stocks were tumbling and wiping out fortunes, because of the fear of a general European war, wheat soared and built up other fortunes within an hour.

In the wildest market seen in Chicago since the Leiter corner in 1898, the price of wheat fluctuated so fast that the quotations marker in the smoking room of the Board of Trade, was at times two and three cents away from the quotations ruling in the pit. The net gain for the day was nearly ten cents a bushel on all futures.

It is estimated that between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 bushels of wheat were sold during the day. Men were swept off their feet and carried out of the pit on the backs of fighting brokers.

One hitherto obscure broker made a profit of nearly $150,000 in the wheat pit between 11 and 1:15 o'clock.

KAISER TELLS CROWN PRINCE TO KEEP ON PLAYING TENNIS

BERLIN, July 29.—Crown Prince Frederick William, the warlike heir to the German throne, who has been playing tennis at Zoppot, a seaside resort near Dantzig, received orders today from his imperial father to stay there and keep on playing tennis.

The reason attributed for this order is fear that the young heir to the throne if allowed to return to Berlin at the present juncture would further inflame the situation.

Warsaw Arsenals and Postoffice Are Blown Up; Polish Socialists Blamed

VIENNA, July 29.—A reign of terror prevails in Warsaw, Russian Poland. Revolutionists have blown up several powder magazines with dynamite bombs, according to dispatches received from well-informed quarters today.

Several bombs were exploded at the principal postoffice and many persons were killed and injured.

One dispatch asserts that the whole Warsaw citadel was blown up. This structure, known as the Alexander Citadel, was the chief military headquarters on the north side of the city.

The first sign of an outbreak, the dispatches say, came on Monday, when a magazine of one of the fifteen Warsaw forts was blown up. Explosion in others followed.

Leaders of the Polish revolutionists deny that their followers are responsible for the explosions, but these denials are given little credence.

Semi-official statements given out in Warsaw attribute the explosions to lightning.

PREDICTS BLOODIEST CONFLICT

"If Russia comes to the aid of Servia," said General Nelson A. Miles at the Hotel Somerset today, "it is difficult to see how the rest of the Powers can avoid being drawn into the conflict—and no man can say what the result will be.

"If Russia stays out and Germany backs Austria, it will simply amount to Austria's taking possession of Servia and doing as she pleases with that country."

General Miles is in Boston on his way to the opening of the Cape Cod Canal.

"It is a terrible thing to contemplate," he continued, "for it means there will be 20,000,000 men available for war. Russia alone can put 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 in the field, and would make a far different showing from that of the war with Japan.

"Then she had to take her soldiers 5,000 miles over a single-track railroad, which was in poorer condition than any one of our own six transcontinental lines. The Russian Army is now in good condition and very powerful.

"Germany can put 5,500,000 men in the field. Austria can show 2,500,000, France 2,000,000 and Italy 1,000,000. Just what Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria will do is problematical.

"I cannot guess, either, how many men England can put in the field. Her standing force is not so very remarkable. If she calls in territorial troops from India, however, she can produce a vast army.

"Austria's army is in good condition. It has not been engaged for a good many years, and is well recruited and finely trained.

"I agree with those who predict that this will be one of the bloodiest wars of all history, and that it may very probably be the last great war.

"The awful expense of keeping 20,000,000 men in the field, let alone the loss of life; the fact that 20,000,000 men would be taken from industry; the cost of their equipment—which in these modern days is a very high expense; the cost of their maintenance, the cessation of commerce and transportation, make a terrible total.

"The war debts simply cannot be borne by the peoples of the Continent at this rate for long. And I hope and expect that the day will come when we shall see established a Congress of Nations, for the purpose of arbitration, to which all Nations will be obliged to submit their differences."

LONDON, July 29.—In the stock market British consols sold at one time today at 69½, the lowest price ever recorded since the earliest years of the last century. When the price reached that figure, a government broker began buying all consols available and the price went up to 70½.

PARIS, July 29.—Trading on the bourse was at a standstill today. Brokers refused to make any prices.

HUB TRADE STOPPED BY WAR MOVES

The threat of a European war has already affected business in the United States, and shipments from Boston by local merchants have been cancelled in many lines.

A jump in prices in many commodities is predicted, and commerce will suffer from the lack of merchant marine.

American goods are now carried to Europe almost entirely in foreign vessels, and few of these would continue available if the war becomes general.

A. C. Lawrence & Co., the biggest leather house doing an exporting and importing business, have received a cable from Frankfort, Germany, instructing them to stop all shipments. Advices have also been received that shipments of all calfskins from Russia and Scandinavia will be stopped. The prospect in the leather market is that prices in light skins are going to take a jump.

LEATHER TO BE SCARCE.

"Ninety per cent. of our leather comes from Russia and Scandinavia," said Mr. Lawrence. "We get some from Norway. If the war interrupts trade with these countries we will be unable to get the raw supplies. We secure our skins from Russia and cure them. The shipments come from the south of Russia."

The largest shoe house doing a foreign business is A. W. Tedcastle & Co. The head of the concern, Mr. Tedcastle, deplores the fact that the United States is dependent on foreign vessels for its shipments of goods.

"The war will tend to decrease importation of raw material from Europe, if not entirely stop it, and also to curtail exportation of the finished product," he said.

The American Thread Company, which does the principal business in thread in this country and is closely connected with the foreign thread trade, sees a possible interruption in its business by the war situation. Arthur E. Atwood, Boston representative for the company, predicted that a general war will stop European manufacture by shutting off the supply of American raw material.

UNITED SHOE NOT ALARMED.

The United Shoe Machinery Company, which is one of the principal industries having foreign connections, is not alarmed at the situation.

Mr. T. A. Cushman, in charge of the foreign department, said:

"We have houses in Denmark, Russia, France, Italy, England, Germany and Austria. The German factories supply all of Eastern and Southern Europe with shoe machinery. The situation, therefore, is not immediately alarming."

The Boston office of the American Express Company is not seeking any business in foreign cables, according to its manager. The nominal quotations for cables are given out, but it is a question whether any would be accepted. These are: Cables on London sold for $4.92 and demand 4.92, pound sterling; franc cables on Paris were quoted at 5 with none to sell. Marks were quoted at 96½.

"All of these figures are the highest on record and are actually prohibitive," Assistant Manager Marsh declared.

Crown Council Advises Czar to Prepare for War

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—Russian officials believe that their country will be at war within a short time.

Prince Trubetzkoi, chief of the near-eastern division of the foreign office, said today:

"The situation has reached the most dangerous point."

It is known that all the members of the crown council have advised the Czar to prepare for war.

Eight Failures Over War Scare in London

LONDON, July 29.—Eight failures due to the slump caused by the war scare were announced on the stock exchange today. Though the exchange opened as usual practically no business was done and prices were only nominal. In a market ruled by depression American stocks were flat. Canadian Pacific fell 13¼ points and Union Pacific dropped 3¾. Other recessions were a point or more.

KING PETER TO LEAD SERVIANS AGAINST AUSTRIAN FOE

TROOPS AWAIT BATTLE

KRAGUYEVATZ, Servia, July 29.—Though not fully recovered from the severe illness which caused the appointment of Prince Alexander as regent, King Peter took personal command of the Servian army today. He will lead his troops in battle with the Austrian invaders.

The army of Montenegro is working in concert with that of Servia. A Montenegrin brigade equipped with mountain guns arrived at Prijpolje today and effected a junction with the Servian forces there.

Prijpolje is on the River Lim. An entire Servian division is advancing from Novibazar to the Lim.

The volunteer forces are assembling at Leichnitza, southwest of Belgrade. From there they will move southward to join the Prijpolje troops. The troops that withdraw from Belgrade are falling back to Kraguyevatz, where the main headquarters have been located. This indicates that if the Austrian troops press on after capturing Belgrade, the Servians will make a final and desperate stand in the mountains near Kruchevatz.

The extreme southern forces are concentrating at Istib and Uskub. The greater part of the artillery used in the recent Balkan wars has been gathered at Uskub.

DR. CONSTANTIN VON MASIREVICH, secretary to Dr. Konstantin Dumba, Austrian ambassador to the United States, who has been recalled to Vienna for war service.

W. W. ROCKHILL SAYS "CONFLICT INEVITABLE"

LITCHFIELD, Ct., July 29.—A tremendous conflict between Teuton and Slav is inevitable in Europe—if not now, then soon—in the opinion of William W. Rockhill, who has served as ambassador in both Russia and Turkey. Mr. Rockhill is here for the Summer. He said:

"War between Austria and Servia is but a natural result of the agitation looking to the combining of the Slav elements into a kingdom of their own. It is a racial question, the development of the creation of nationalities that has been coming on for years. National honor and racial pride are involved.

"If Austria carries her point and crushes the southern Slavs it will be hard for Russia to bear, and I doubt if the Slavs can be kept down permanently. Russia is their great protector.

"The Slavs in Bosnia and Herzegovina have been better administered under the Austrians than they were under the Turks, but they have not laid aside their racial feeling.

"Then Austria has lost prestige in the last two years. Everything went wrong for her in the Balkan wars. She saw Servia broaden. The Slavs in the south were getting more and more grip. The killing of Archduke Ferdinand and his wife was the spark that fired the final trouble.

"They may patch up things, but will only get along for a time. It will simply be a compromise. The racial question will bob up again."

GUARD GERMAN SHIPS FROM BRITISH CAPTURE

LONDON, July 29.—In the event of war with England, Germany will not take any undue risk of the capture of her ocean-going steamers, and all the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd ships will immediately tie up at the nearest neutral ports.

The possibility is greatly exercising the minds of thousands of American travellers now in London and within the past two days the steamship lines have been much pressed with inquiries for early sailing. Many who arrived by the Aquitania from America and who intended to proceed to Carlsbad and elsewhere are reconsidering their plans and London hotel men are likely to reap a rich harvest.

Whether or not warlike operations are likely to occur in the neighborhood of Carlsbad, which is seventy miles northwest of Prague, it is certain that the restriction of train service will make travelling awkward, while automobilists are also likely to be subjected to delay and other inconveniences.

Sir Thomas Lipton, who will sail for New York on the Aquitania August 15, cheerfully says the crisis will keep Americans at home and so increase the crowds at the cup races, but this is poor consolation for Americans who have already arrived and who are gloomily taking counsel together in the lobbies of the big hotels as to whether it is worth while to risk a Continental trip.

A Dresden message says many American tourists are arriving there from across the frontier in motor cars, while a number of others are expected by the Eger route.

REPINGTON OUTLINES AUSTRIA'S WAR PLANS

LONDON, July 29.—Colonel Acourt Repington, the London Times military correspondent, surveying Austria's probable military plans, writes:

Between 300,000 and 400,000 troops are concentrating by rail and river on the Servian frontier. There are seven army corps, each with two active divisions and one reserve engaged. One corps, 6,000 strong, apparently, is covering the force against Roumania, and the other six probably will be divided into three armies, each approximately 100,000 to 120,000 strong, commanded by Generals Potiorek, Von Frank and Von Auffenberg.

"The plan of campaign probably anticipates the early evacuation of the northwestern region by the Servians and the concentration between Kragulevatz, Krutchevatz and Nish. Against this central position Austrians probably will attempt an enveloping attack, the armies being supported and linked by cavalry.

"The enemy's position has been reconnoitred by air craft. The right army probably will advance from Serajevo and Uvatz eastward, with the centre army from Semlin southeastward and the left army will move up the Moneva valley.

"The Austrians might have had Belgrade Monday if they wished, but it was important for all the armies to advance together when they are ready to attack, for crossing the frontier may be the signal for a Russian ultimatum to Vienna. It was to Austria's interest to defer that moment."

GENERAL WAR MAY DRAW MILLION MEN FROM THIS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, July 29.—Some idea of the magnitude of a general European war can be gained from the figures given in the census of 1910 and by the different consuls, allowing that there are more than 3,500,000 men in the United States, more than twenty-three years old, born in Europe. Thousands of these are actually membbers of the reserve corps of the foreign armies.

It is the concensus of the foremost men of the different nationalities in this city that should a general European struggle start more than 1,000,000 men would be taken back from the United States for service in foreign armies.

In addition to those who are enlisted in foreign armies, many more probably will return if there should be a call for volunteers. The fact that last month 14,000 reserves of the Austrian army reported to the consulate in this city points to many thousands throughout the country who will be called upon to bear arms in case of war. These reserves comprise only those living in New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

CZAR URGES SUBJECTS TO SHOW NO EMMITY TOWARD THE POWERS

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—The Czar has caused to be issued the following official communication:

"Numerous patriotic demonstrations of the last few days in St. Petersburg and other cities prove that the firm, pacific policy of Russia finds a sympathetic echo among all classes of the population.

"The government hopes, nevertheless, that the expression of feeling of the people will not be tinged with enmity against the powers with whom Russia is at peace and with whom she wishes to remain at peace.

"While the government gathers strength from this wave of popular feeling and expects its subjects to retain their reticence and tranquillity, it rests confidently on the guardianship of the dignity and the interests of Russia."

U. S. WARSHIP SOLD TO GREECE MAY PLAY BIG PART IN WAR

The two American battleships recently sold to Greece, the Idaho and the Mississippi, may play a large part in the opening conflict in Europe.

The Idaho has been transferred to a Greek crew at Villefranche, and has been renamed the Memnos. The Mississippi, renamed the Kilkis, is at Newport News, preparing to sail for Greece. She will be officered by Greeks save for one American, Louis Brown, a former Washington newspaper man, who studied at Annapolis.

If Austria pushes her invasion of Servia, as she undoubtedly will, it is extremely possible that all the Balkan states may unite against her. The Balkans are racially antagonistic to the Austro-Hungarian empire. And if Greece becomes involved, the two battleships may well offer Austria's battle fleet serious resistance. They will in all probability be a prominent factor in the war.

William W. Rockhill, who has served as United States Ambassador to Russia and Turkey, said yesterday at Litchfield, Ct.:

"The United States sold two battleships to Greece. They will not maintain peace. They will add fuel to the fire. They will be heard from."

AUSTRIAN ENVOY'S SECRETARY LEAVES FOR WAR SERVICE

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, July 29.—Dr. Constantin von Masirevich, secretary to Dr. Konstantin Dumba, Austrian Ambassador to the United States, left here today to sail for Vienna. He has been summoned home to take his place as a member of the Austrian General Army Council.

AUSTRIAN ENVOY PUTS ALL BLAME ON RUSSIA

By ALBERT PROPPER

Konstantin Theodor Dumba, doctor of international law and ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of Austria and Hungary, says, at his Summer home at Manchester, their national self-respect demanded the war between his dual monarchy and the kingdom of Servia. He declares anti-Austrian agitations and intrigues fathered by the Serbs and encouraged by Russia have on many occasions brought the Austrians to prepare for war at the cost of hundreds of millions in gold and other immense expenditures impossibble to estimate; that his country does not purpose to ruin Servia, but only to humiliate it to extent consistent with justice, and that his country does not desire to annex the Servian territory.

"Servia has been interfering without governing our own possessions for a long time, and she has done everything in her power to bring about agitation in Bosnia and Herzegovina and in all the Slavic possessions of the dual monarchies to mislead the people, create disaffection and prepare us for war against herself every two years or so," he said.

"I do not blame the Servian government, as such, for the murders, but neither do I blame the two boys, nineteen and twenty-one years old, respectively, alone; but there is no doubt that the unfair and bishonest agitations misled and crazed the people, among them these boys, to the atrocity.

"The Servian actors in the tragedy do not stand alone. Agents are traveling about in many guises, making all sorts of representations to the people. The same system of agents is agitating the organization of the Slav race everywhere, even in America, and it is this system that creates the disturbance in our Slavic possessions and led to the double murder of our crown-prince family.

"NOTHING UNDERHANDED."

"That report about Hungary taking advantage of this situation is all slander. Hungary has a fighting history of a thousand years, but she has never been known to do an underhanded thing. A Hungarian will declare war against a thousand, and be crushed, forsooth, if he feels injured, but he will come and fight face to face; and that is his nation's character as a people.

"My country would not have paid any attention to the general panslavic agitation, but for the fact that because of it we had to keep an army, at great expense, in Bosnia and Harzegovina, to the great terror of these nations and to the great cost of our people. Bosnia and Herzegovina are ours.

"We must teach them to understand our government and our civilization. We must encourage and foster their industries, and we must protect them from enemies of a thousand years' standing.

"We are doing that, and here comes Servia, with her agents and agitators, and poisons the people and terrorizes the country until we have to have armies upon their land for their own sakes.

"Of course, Russia is behind part of it, perhaps not financially, but anyway, morally, by her encouragement.

"I do not believe Russia wants to fight. Russia cannot afford it without dragging France into it. France has recently loaned her thirty billions of francs, so that, if Russia fights it will be with French funds and if France is dragged into it, it will do so to save her financial investments and the war ammunitions she sold Russia on credit.

"REDEEMED BY BLOOD."

"Servia is a new country, and just a generation or two ago freed from the Turks, who oppressed them and kept them ignorant. We saved them and redeemed them by our blood and money from the Turks, under the leadership of our Prince Eugene, and well did she repay us for the liberty we bought her so dearly, by killing out what was left of the family of our aged emperor."

FEAR OF REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROUNDLESS

Thousands of women now regularly remove every trace of unbeautiful hair growths from their faces and bodies. It is totally unnecessary nowadays to have such disfigurements. While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time; its action is perfectly harmless, simple and thorough. When the hair finally does reappear, it is finer instead of coarser, and can be instantly removed again for a still longer period than at first. A few drops of El Rado, a simple application, and in a moment the hair vanishes—it is dissolved, the skin is left smooth, velvety, and even whiter than before.

El Rado is now practically regarded as an indispensable toilet necessity. Innumerable women use it. You need have no more hesitation, therefore, in calling for it than in asking for a toilet powder. Test El Rado on your arm; prove for yourself that it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. 50c and $1.00 size bottles at all leading drug and department stores, or direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. CAILLAUX TRIAL GREAT SCANDAL, FIGARO SAYS

PARIS, July 29.—"The acquittal of Mme. Caillaux is the verdict of shame and the greatest scandal of our epoch," is the comment made in Le Figaro today.

PARIS, July 29.—Madame Caillaux is free today.

After deliberating less than an hour on the evidence of the most sensational trial in the criminal annals of France, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. Madame Caillaux killed Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, not in cold blood, according to the jurors, but while temporarily insane through fear that he would publish letters which passed between herself and her husband when their love was illicit.

Mme. Caillaux today, attired in one of her handsomest gowns, received several of her intimate friends. Among the first to call on her was Maitre Labori, who acted as her attorney during the trial. After talking with her friends a while she entertained them at dinner.

AIDED BY UNWRITTEN LAW.

It is probable that the unwritten law played its part in bringing about the acquittal of the beautiful wife of the former French Premier. The delicate "point of honor" was dwelt upon at length by Maitre Labori, in his plea for the prisoner, who sat weeping softly as he talked. And the plea had its effect. Before he finished several of the jurymen were in tears.

The verdict was no surprise to the thronged courtroom. Long before the jury retired it was admitted, even by the friends of the murdered editor, that the woman who shot him down in his private office would be given the minimum sentence of two years.

Nevertheless, for all that, the verdict not guilty was expected. Its announcement by the jurors was greeted with an uproar which seemed to shake the very walls of the Palais de Justice.

CHEERED AND HISSED.

"Caillaux, Caillaux, vive Caillaux!" screamed adherents of the one-time strong man of France.

"Murderess—let us spit on her!" Calmette's supporters cried back.

Out in the corridors and in the streets, where throngs were jammed, awaiting the verdict, there was still another uproar. Caillaux and his wife were alternately cheered and hissed, lauded and reviled.

Madame Caillaux looked up quickly as the jurors re-entered the courtroom with their verdict and clenched her hands so tightly that her finger nails cut into her flesh.

Then as the words "not guilty" were pronounced, she rose with a wild, insane laugh that seemed half a sob, and with arms extended toward her husband, cried: "Joseph, Joseph!" and then fell fainting into the arms of Attorney Labori, who had rushed to her side.

PRAISES LABORI.

Demonstrations against the verdict occurred in several places early today. In one section the mob became so disorderly that a number of police and rioters were injured and many arrests were made. Maurice and Jean Rostand, sons of the dramatist, were among those taken into custody. The Figaro office also was the scene of a demonstration.

"It is Maitre Labori to whom I owe the good fortune to be finally free. He pleaded for me with all his fine talent, and I am profoundly grateful to him," was the only comment Mme. Caillaux would make today.

August and September will this year be the most popular of the Fall months for weddings, and among the important ones of August will be that on the 15th, of pretty Rachel Warren, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fiske Warren, and Samuel K. Lothrop, elder son of Mrs. William Sturgis Hooper Lothrop of Commonwealth avenue. The wedding will take place in the town of Harvard, where the parents of the bride own a beautiful Summer home. The engagement of Miss Warren and Mr. Lothrop was announced in June.

* * *

This is the wedding day of Miss Constance Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Arnold of Providence, and Dr. William P. Buffam, Jr., of Newport, now an interne in the Boston City Hospital. Many Bostonians have gone down for the wedding, which is to take place in the Congregational Church. The ceremony takes place at 4 o'clock and is performed by the Rev. Dr. Augustus M. Lord. There will be only a few guests.

The bride is attended by Mrs. Charles Carter Walbridge of Philadelphia, a sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor. The bridesmaids are Miss Elsie Aldrich, daughter of former Senator Aldrich, and Miss Helen Metcalf of Providence. Alfred Harkness of Providence is the best man, and the ushers include Dr. Edward D. Leonard, Boston; Harry F. Smith, New York; John H. Wells, Alfred H. Poland and Frederick W. Arnold of Providence and Charles Carter Walbridge of Philadelphia.

* * *

This is also the wedding day of Miss Gladys M. Estes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Estes of Gorham, Me., and Ralph H. Bragdon of South Boston, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bragdon. Miss Estes is a graduate of the Gorham, Me., High School and until vacation was a teacher in the public schools of Westwood. The bridegroom is a graduate of the English High School, class of 1908, and of Tufts, 1912. He is science instructor of the Abington High School.

Bell furnished $500 bail to await hearing.

Oelrichs Gives Large Luncheon on Yacht

NEWPORT, July 29.—Herman Oelrichs gave a luncheon on board the Vagabond II. for a large party. Lord and Lady Camoys are expected to arrive for the remainder of the season early in August. Sir Arthur and Lady Herbert have returned after a week's absence in the White Mountains.

THE FRANCONIA ARRIVES WITH 1213 ON BOARD

The Cunarder Franconia arrived today from Liverpool with 180 saloon, 383 cabin and 650 steerage passengers, including a number of prominent people.

The largest family group among the saloon passengers included Mrs. Archer-Shee of London, seven children, governess, man servant, maid and three nurses.

The mother is the wife of Major Martin Archer-Shee, Unionist member of Parliament for one of the London seats. He married a daughter of Alfred Pell of New York, and the family annually comes over to visit here. This year, however, the Major thought it best to remain in London on account of the political crisis. He hopes to get over later in the season.

Another interesting party included Governor Louis B. Hanna of North Dakota, his son, Robert; Colonel Gilbert W. Davis of the Governor's staff, the Governor's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Clapp, and two friends, John A. Masters and Miss Mildred Masters. All are returning from Norway, where Governor Hanna presented to the people of that kingdom the statue of Abraham Lincoln given by the people of North Dakota. This statue, executed by Paul Fjelde of Chicago, pupil of Lorado Taft, is North Dakota's gift to note the centennial anniversary of Norway's independence from Denmark.

Other passengers included S. W. Cole, superintendent of Brookline public schools; H. L. Collier of the Carney Hospital, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Nutting, Mrs. W. H. McElwain, sons and daughters, Donald, Alexander, Dorothy and Helen; Rev. M. F. McDonnell of South Braintree and Miss Katherine Filene of Boston.

PASTOR'S WIFE ADVERTISES AS WASHERWOMAN

RELIABLE American lady would like to take home washing. C. A., 25 Fabin st., Boston, Mass.

This advertisement in the Boston papers reveals the plight of Mrs. John J. Arnaud, sixty, whose husband is a retired Congregational minister, seventy-three.

When her husband advertised for work Mrs. Arnaud also sought employment as a washerwoman. She is a graduate of one of the oldest finishing schools in Boston. The minister was graduated from the theological department of the New Hampton Institute at Fairfax, Va. Afterward he studied at Andover Theological Seminary. His last church was in Needham.

He found that people demanded more than the old school sermons, and he and his wife went their way rather than change their religious views.

Now they are living in one of the poorer sections of the city. The husband is anxious to have an opportunity to occupy a pulpit while the regular pastor is away. He is willing to write letters, do anything, in fact, which an educated man of his age can do.

Owing to the fact that the broken bones pierced the flesh it has been impossible to complete the operation until the wound heals.

Had Serious Lung Trouble—Now Well

Sufferers from Lung trouble are often misled in the belief that nothing will save them. Rest, fresh air, wholesome food and regularity in habits do much in aiding to restore health, but something else is needed. Many people who have taken Eckman's Alterative have testified that it was this medicine which restored them to health. Read this:—

Veldon, Ill.

"Gentlemen—Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 14, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia which developed into Lung Trouble. In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 103 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Lung Trouble. Today I weigh 158 pounds. I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator."

(Affidavit) ARTHUR WEBB.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by leading druggists. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries.

IRISH ARMY VOLUNTEERS PLAN DRILLS

Baton's Irish National Volunteer Regiment, already 700 strong, is expected to number 1,000 men when its next drill is held at Hibernian Hall on Friday night, following an outdoor drill at the Fenway playgrounds. The men, who are pledged to go to Ireland to fight for Home Rule at a moment's notice, expect to be uniformed within three weeks.

In the meantime two open air drills and a meeting indoors will be the weekly program. Many of the men now recruited have seen service in the armies of the United States and Great Britain.

The movement to recruit men in Boston to fight side by side with their countrymen in Ireland is practically in its infancy. The work has been carried on quietly, but now exceeds the fondest expectations of the men behind the project.

"One minute of independence is worth oceans of blood," declared one of the men who addressed the volunteers.

The 700 men, most of them young and unmarried, assembled at Hibernian Hall, Sergeants Quinlan and Osborne, formerly of the United States Marine Corps, assisted by President Peter Conroy and Vice-President John J. Collins, began to drill the men in column formation, wheeling and turning, squad and platoon movements.

T. B. Fitzpatrick, national treasurer of the United Irish League of America, has forwarded to the trustees of the Irish Home Rule fund in Dublin a draft for $10,000 for the Irish National Volunteer fund.

In a letter accompanying the draft, Mr. Fitzpatrick says:

"The recently cabled reports of the efforts of the enemies of Home Rule to thwart the will of the Irish people have intensified the sympathy of the people here with Ireland's cause. I am satisfied that this sympathy will take substantial form within the next few weeks, and that Ireland's friends in America will respond promptly and generously to Mr. Redmond's call for aid at this crucial time."

PRIEST HOLDS 'MASSACRE' AID TO HOME RULE

The Rev. C. F. O'Leary of St. Louis, one of the best known Irish Nationalists in the United States, an able writer and orator, is in Boston today, the guest of Michael J. Jordan, national secretary of the United Irish League and of Charles J. O'Malley. Speaking on the crisis that has arisen in Ireland Father O'Leary said to the AMERICAN:

"Those poor people who have lost their lives in Dublin are martyrs in the cause of freedom ever whit as much as were the victims of the Boston Massacre. As the blood of the martyrs in the Roman Coliseum was indeed the seed of the Christian church, so the blood that was shed in Dublin will produce rich harvest for Irish nationality.

"It is wrong, altogether wrong, to make this great struggle of the Irish people a religious conflict.

'TRUST LEADERS ON SCENE IN IRELAND'

J. R. MURPHY URGES

"Let the leaders who are on the ground take care of the situation in Ireland. We here in America, 3,000 miles away, must be guided by the judgment of those men. They are the responsible and chosen leaders of the Irish people. It is simple logic and common sense that they should not be interfered with or dictated to by people from this side of the Atlantic, who cannot possibly know the political conditions as they fluctuate from hour to hour in the present crisis."

This was the opinion given to the Boston AMERICAN by John R. Murphy, chairman of the Finance Commission and life-long student of the Irish movement.

Charge Cleary Used Police Chief's Gun

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., July 29.—Belief that William V. Cleary, town clerk of Haverstraw, used Chief of Police Michael Ford's revolver in shooting Eugene Newman, Cleary's youthful son-in-law, was strengthened today when Chief Ford admitted the weapon had been missing since the day of the tragedy.

20,000 Workers in Mines May Strike

SCRANTON, Pa., July 29.—R. A. Phillips, vice-president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company, mailed a circular letter today to the 20,000 employers, declaring he will have no further conferences with the general grievance committee. The mine workers agreed last week to go on strike unless the company recognized their committee today.

Deitrick Has Bill for Federal Pension

Congressman Deitrick of Cambridge has introduced a bill in Congress to provide pensions for all government employes by the deduction of 3 per cent. annually from their salaries. This would give a revenue of $9,000,000 annually to a trust company, organized under the bill, which would pay the pensions and conduct a loan business.

Tramps Stop Train to Climb Aboard

Five tramps placed torpedoes on the Boston & Maine tracks at Swampscott to stop the through freight to Canada, so that they might board. Railroad Policeman Davis prevented three of the hoboes from getting on, but the other two climbed aboard.

OFFICIAL, NATION-WIDE ENDORSEMENT of Kellogg's WAXTITE PACKAGE

From 48 State and Municipal Health Authorities

W. K. Kellogg
KELLOGG TOASTED CORN FLAKE CO. BATTLE CREEK, MICH.
WAXTITE
THE PERFECT PACKAGE

Reasons for "WAXTITE" from Men Who Know

CALIFORNIA—
Dr. L. M. Powers, Health Commissioner, Los Angeles, says: "Sealed packages and wax paper wrappings are economical and convenient, and protect against dust and dirt and are a protection from disease."

Dr. Sarshel D. Cooper, D.O., San Francisco, says: "Having examined and eaten Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes put up in the 'Waxtite' packages I am free to admit that they are far superior to any other similar product that I have ever tried. Being put up in air-tight packages is bound to keep them crisp and fresh indefinitely and, I believe, will tend to preserve their nutritive qualities. In the future I will with pleasure recommend to my patients the use of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes on account of the 'Waxtite' package which makes them absolutely sanitary."

COLORADO—
John Lynch, State Food and Drug Commissioner, says: "This department regards the practice of encasing food products in air-tight packages as a decided step forward in food sanitation. 'Waxtite' is a simple and efficacious device for preventing the deterioration or contamination of foods and is to be highly commended."

Dr. J. M. Perkins, Health Commissioner, City and County of Denver, says: "The new container being known as 'Waxtite' package, seems to possess all that can be desired in the way of a sanitary container for such food."

GEORGIA—
J. D. Price, Commissioner State Department Agriculture, says: "The use of wax paper in wrapping food packages after being sealed is an excellent idea as it aids in keeping out contamination and keeping the original strength and flavor of food so wrapped."

ILLINOIS—
Dr. John A. Robson, Pres. Illinois State Board of Health, says: "The Waxtite package meets with my most sincere approval. It is a step in the right direction. If all food-stuffs could be enclosed in a like protected package, it would be of great benefit to the public."

INDIANA—
Dr. J. N. Hurty, State Public Health Commissioner, says: "The proper wrapping of food-stuffs to protect them against pollution is plainly very important. The Waxtite package certainly secures all the results desired from secure wrappings."

IOWA—
Dr. H. L. Sayler, City Health Officer, Des Moines, says: "I commend the movement now under way to protect food-stuffs with covering that will prevent moisture, germs and impurities from entering packages, producing not only decomposed food but poison. There is a satisfaction in opening a package that is thoroughly protected and the plan of using wax covering for food-stuffs meets my approval."

KANSAS—
Dr. J. A. Ramsey, City Health Officer, Topeka, says: "I have examined very carefully the 'Waxtite' wrapper for food packages and believe it to be of great value in preserving food products from contamination. It meets with my ideas exactly as a sanitary wrapper for any or all food products, and I can most cheerfully recommend it."

F. L. Huxtable, City Food Inspector, Wichita, says: "The idea of a sealed package for breakfast foods is beyond a doubt a necessity for the health of the public and is heartily approved by me. The Waxtite package certainly should be popular with housewives."

LOUISIANA—
Dr. Oscar Dowling, State Health Commissioner, says: "After examination of many kinds of food products put up in cartons, paper packages, or tin boxes, it is evident that those having an additional sealed covering of oiled or paraffin paper are the best protected. In this climate the additional covering is absolutely necessary."

MASSACHUSETTS—
Dr. M. W. Richardson, Secretary State Board of Health, says: "The advantages of wax sealed packages for the protection of prepared food would be two-fold; first, evaporation of moisture from foods originally moist would be prevented—furthermore dry foods would not take up moisture; and, of course, germ life would be excluded from such packages."

MICHIGAN—
J. W. Helme, Commissioner State Food Department, says: "In the sale of cereals three things are to be guarded against. First, contagion by careless handling and from dust, dirt and flies. Second, deterioration of contents by the absorption of moisture. Third, infestation by cereal eating insects which we find quite common even in many package food-stuffs. It is with pleasure that this department views the advent of the Kellogg waxtite package which prevents all the above defects."

MINNESOTA—
Joel G. Winkjer, Commissioner State Food Department, says: "In the production and distribution of food products the package plays an important part. Your efforts in this line with the Waxtite Cover are commendable."

Dr. C. E. Dutton, City Health Commissioner, Minneapolis, says: "There are many advantages in the protection given certain kinds of food-stuffs by wrapping and sealing the original package with paraffined paper such as the Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake Company's waxtite package."

Dr. H. E. Webster, Director of Public Health, Duluth, says: "Deterioration and dirt have always been two of the hardest things to overcome in the marketing of prepared foods. It looks now as if the double problem has been solved by the making of the Waxtite package, for it certainly is proof against dirt and moisture, and is calculated to keep the contents from losing any of their food value."

MISSOURI—
F. H. Fricke, State Pure Food Commissioner, St. Louis, says: "One of the best methods of protecting cereals and other foods from dust, vermin and insanitary handling is careful packing. I think the Waxtite covering of cartons, in which food is packed, is the ideal method of solving the problem."

Dr. Walter N. Cross, City Chemist, Kansas City, says: "I have examined 'Waxtite' packages. The importance of this proper sealing and wrapping of food-stuffs in packages is of very great value and an excellent protection and safeguard for the housewife."

NORTH DAKOTA—
Prof. E. F. Ladd, Commissioner Agricultural College, says: "We endorse the use of all classes of sanitary packages; and the package submitted under the label 'Waxtite' is to be classed as meeting all the requirements under the Sanitary Law of North Dakota."

NEBRASKA—
Clarence E. Harman, State Food Commissioner, Omaha, says: "I feel that a food that is ready to eat, which is enclosed in a paper bag, and then placed in a carton, and then the carton wrapped and sealed with parchment paper, fully meets the requirements of the sanitary law."

Hon. Jas. E. Dahlman, Mayor of Omaha, says: "The new Kellogg Waxtite package is the best thing I have seen in the way of food packages for a long time. By the use of this we will be able to secure our favorite breakfast cereal as fresh and crisp as when it first comes from the toasters. Success to you and the Waxtite package."

Dr. W. H. Wilson, State Food Inspector, Lincoln, says: "The Waxtite covering of the carton in which the Kellogg Corn Flakes are packed provides a seal against dirt and contamination. It is an improvement that should be looked upon with deep favor by housewives."

NEW YORK—
C. J. Huson, Commissioner State Department Agriculture, says: "The use of waxed paper or other air-tight material for wrapping food products placed on the market should be encouraged. When manufacturers of food products take the pains to so wrap their products, it is pretty good evidence that the same care and sanitary methods were used in their manufacture."

Dr. F. W. Sears, Health Officer, Syracuse, says: "Great care should be exercised in the wrappers for dry food-stuffs. Any covering which will take up moisture is not as good as a covering which is impervious to water, like paraffin or waxed paper."

Dr. Francis Fronczak, Health Commissioner, Buffalo, says: "As Health Commissioner of the City of Buffalo, I have repeatedly urged that food-stuffs, wherever practicable, should be wrapped to protect from contamination, and I am most heartily in favor of paraffin packages, like the Waxtite package."

OKLAHOMA—
Dr. J. C. Mahr, State Commissioner of Health, says: "It is very important that food products should be protected from hands in handling. 'Waxtite,' in my opinion, will secure protection from finger pollution, dust and insect pollution."

OHIO—
Dr. Louis Kahn, Health Officer, City of Columbus, says: "The rules of the Columbus Board of Health have always provided that food-stuffs should be properly protected from any possible contamination, and we therefore heartily indorse the method used by some manufacturers of food products, which provide for wrapping the same in an impervious sealed package."

PENNSYLVANIA—
Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, Commissioner State Department of Health, says: "There should be more care taken in wrapping food-stuffs to protect them from dirt and dust which frequently contain germs which are not only disease producing but cause decomposition of food-stuffs, producing poisons which are injurious when eaten by man."

Reasons why the Waxtite package keeps the crispness, freshness and flavor of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes are given above. They explain why all package cereal foods should be packed Waxtite. These letters are from officials whose business it is to know how cereal food should be packed.

CAPE COD CANAL IS OPENED TO COMMERCE WITH SHIP PARADE

SANDWICH, July 29.—This was Cape Cod's great day, when the canal which has been a dream for two centuries became a reality and was formally opened to commerce.

August Belmont, Curtis Guild and Seth Low were the principal speakers at the dedicatory exercises. Mr. Belmont first came to Sandwich to speak at the celebration of the 275th anniversary of the town's founding, and told how his own ancestors once lived on land now cut by the canal his company has built.

Then he hurried in his motor boat, the Scout, to overtake the line of vessels, which following the Rose Standish of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, proceeded from New Bedford to the canal mouth, through, and back again to Buzzards Bay for the formal dedicatory exercises.

The Rose Standish carried hundreds of guests of the Cape Cod Construction Company. A torpedo boat destroyer bore Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Rear Admiral Austin M. Enright of the United States naval station at Newport. There were many private vessels in the line.

MANY NOTABLES PRESENT.

The dedicatory exercises were attended by Governor Walsh, Mayor Curley, President Coolidge of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and many other prominent New England business men.

The speakers at the exercises all commented on the fact that New York capital had built the canal—instead of New England capital. Mr. Belmont, after reciting the work of building the canal, said:

"I cannot allow the occasion to pass without the mention of those whose names should forever remain on the honor roll of the canal's constructors.

"William Barclay Parsons, its chief engineer, resourceful and tireless. So, too, his aids, Charles T. Waring and A. S. Ackerman, loyal and diligent.

"Commodore J. W. Miller, vice-president and general manager, experienced and expert.

"Then Michael J. Degnon, the giant contractor, who rip-rapped the banks, and E. W. Foley, who prepared the way for the dredges in the middle section by dry excavation.

"And last, but in large type, the name of Frank A. Furst. He took the job of dredging and has carried it through against unforeseen difficulties and unforeseen cost to him. He has met his task with the courage of a knight and the honor of a gentleman.

CLOSES COAST GRAVEYARD.

"On the subject of safety, there is not one of us concerned in the construction of this great work, financially or otherwise, but feels that, apart from any commercial aspect, we have been building the greatest life-saving institution on the Atlantic and that through these our efforts the historic graveyard of the coast may be closed.

"Personally, should it serve no other purpose than the saving of thousands of lives from perishing off the Cape, I shall feel my own efforts are repaid."

Seth Low, president of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, said in concluding his address:

"Massachusetts and New York have always been neighbors, and the memory of man runneth not back to the time when they have not been good neighbors. I venture to express the hope that the Cape Cod Canal, in shortening by seventy miles the distance by water between New York and Boston, will bring the people of the two cities not only into closer touch but into more profound sympathy each with the other; and that what is true of these typical cities may be no less true of the two great Commonwealths who are so intimately and so profoundly interested in the Cape Cod Canal."

CURTIS GUILD'S TRIBUTE.

Curtis Guild saw in the opening of the canal new life for Cape Cod. He said:

"One industry after another has vanished from Cape Cod, yet the inventive genius of the people has maintained her characteristic supremacy. The 'sea-shouldering' whale has almost vanished from our coast and the wells of the earth provide the oil which the sea no longer yields. Cape Cod took to her fisheries. Fishing became no longer profitable, the fishing fleet slowly dwindled, yet Cape Cod continued to furnish that splendid race of sailors and sea captains for the American mercantile marine.

"Steam succeeded sails and still our steamships led the world, till President Buchanan struck the first deadly blow at American shipping, which Southern commerce destroyers further emphasized. Thanks to a mistaken policy, the American merchant marine has been driven from the high seas and remains only in the coastwise traffic, which, let us hope, in spite of recent attacks, may still be held fast for the American people.

"With discouragement after discouragement in her marine industries, who could ever have foreseen that Yankee ingenuity would have brought prosperity to this sandy soil in agricultural products, yet patience and ingenuity have made Cape Cod in two modest industries at least, the raising of cranberries and asparagus, not merely successful, but the leader in the produce markets of the United States.

"After three centuries of such struggling against nature itself, the hopes of the earliest founders are crowned by this magnificent triumph of engineering, which fears no comparison, except as to size, with any canal in the world."

Elliott Marshall Is Sought in Bay State

NEW YORK, July 29.—A reward of $250 was offered today for information leading to the discovery of Elliott Marshall, the wealthy lawyer and capitalist, so strangely missing from his Wall street offices and his Montclair home since last Thursday. William J. Burns, who has taken personal charge of the search for the missing man, said today that his operatives would search the vicinity of Bass Rocks, Mass., where Mr. Marshall often spent much time in Summer. Burns stated that he did not believe Mr. Marshall had committed suicide.

YOUNG BRIDE SEES HUSBAND IN COURT PEN

While his bride of two weeks loked on Michael Shapiro of No. 7 Walden street, Revere, was arraigned in the Dorchester Court today on a charge of breaking and entering, waived examination and was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury.

His bride, a girl of about twenty, sat on the spectators' bench with lowered head during the brief proceedings. Once, when Special Officer Patrick J. Williams urged heavy bail so that he might investigate Shapiro's record, the girl looked up and eyed the special officer curiously.

Shapiro waived examination. As his bride was leaving the courtroom she said:

"I only knew he cared for me. I knew nothing of his life. If he is guilty, I did not know it."

She pledged her jewelry for his release on bail after his arrest.

The charge on which Shapiro faces trial is that he entered the apartment at No. 28 Bourneside street, Dorchester, and ransacked the flat of James Rose, was discovered there, leaped from a second story window and was captured after a chase in which Rose, Officer Charles Newell and several boys joined.

STABS HERSELF RATHER THAN BE MARRIED AT 15

Bashfully pulling up the quilt until her dark eyes were covered, fifteen-year-old Amertina Grieco lay in bed at her home, No. 491½ Commercial street, North End, today and explained that she stabbed herself in the breast not because she wished to marry "Patsy" Scala, but because she and "Patsy" do not care to wed yet.

According to Amertina and "Patsy," they would like to be sweethearts now and marry when he has saved $200. But her parents think, Amertina says, she is old enough at fifteen to marry and settle down.

"Monday night I walked up Hanover street and bought a penknife," she said. "Then I walked back to Commercial street and met Patsy. I have been keeping company with him for six months and love him dearly.

"I really meant to kill myself. My parents wanted me to marry. I felt that I was too young. It's a custom of the Italians to insist on their girls marrying at the age of fourteen, fifteen or sixteen. I knew and felt that if I did marry it would be a case of being tied down the remainder of my life and possibly be compelled to go out and work.

"I believe a girl ought not to marry until she is older. The man of her choice ought to have steady employment. Patsy and I understand each other on that point."

"Patsy" Scala, or D'Angelo, as he is also called, is eighteen. He earns $10 a week as a machinist and lives on Unity street.

"I love Amertina," he said today, "and I don't make enough money to get married yet. I am saving and I want to get $200. I don't know why Amertina stabbed herself. I guess she thought she might have to wait too long, though she says she didn't want to marry yet."

With Amertina on the way to recovery "Patsy" felt easier in mind.

Lucy Bigelow to Wed Rich Banker

Miss Lucy Bigelow Dodge, granddaughter of the late John Bigelow of Boston, once Ambassador to France, who fled from friends in London over a year ago to escape the attention of many suitors and became "the girl of mystery," is going to wed Walter Rosen, a New York banker, at the village Church of Ile St. Giles at St. Anne De Bellevue, Canada, on August 11, according to dispatches from London.

'CHIP' ROBINSON'S LIFE

CHAPTER XII.

"When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin?"

—Hamlet.

The events are still vivid in the public mind in Boston which caused "Vopper" Lawrence to confess to the Grand Rapids robbery on the night of June 19, last.

That was the date of the fatal shooting of Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton of Boston when inspectors and Pinkerton detectives went to the Boylston Cafe to arrest "Diamond Chip" Robinson.

Ever since "Vopper" Lawrence was arrested at Newport, Ky., on Sunday, April 4, the search had been kept up for Robinson. Detective John Halloran of Grand Rapids had received in Toledo, O., a top that Robinson was "Vopper's" accomplice in the jewelry store robbery. When Grand Rapids reporters asked Halloran where he expected to get Robinson he said:

"The trail may lead as far East as Boston."

In the light of subsequent events this hint by Halloran was first-class prophecy. On May 14 Robinson did arrive in Boston. He registered at the Commonwealth Hotel on Beacon Hill under the name of "G. Spencer." He began a round of audacious social pleasure in Greater Boston, a round which ranged from taking burlesque favorites to dinner to taking tango lessons in Back Bay dancing academies.

With Robinson when the shooting of Inspector Norton occurred was Joseph Duddy, who regrets the day he met "Diamond Chip" Robinson.

The Pinkertons and Boston headquarters men finally located the pair at the Commonwealth Hotel, trailed them for a few days and then made preparations to close in. The arrest was staged at the Boylston Cafe.

ROBINSON KILLS SELF.

Robinson was caught in Bumstead place, across Boylston street from the cafe. He and Duddy were taken to headquarters. They were indicted for murder and arrangements were speedily made to bring Robinson to trial first.

The trial began last week, Monday, July 20. With able counsel defending him, Robinson was fighting the murder indictment from the start. A jury was drawn. The district attorney opened the case for the State. Witnesses were sworn. Testimony for the State was begun. On the third day of the trial, Wednesday, July 22, the defendant brought all proceedings, so far as he was concerned, to an abrupt halt by committing suicide in his cell in Charles street jail at seven o'clock in the morning.

The suicide of Robinson was essentially bold and ingenious. It showed that, no matter how he is guarded, a resolute and clever man can end his life.

Robinson's first job, after he left grammar school in Washington Courthouse, O., was in a shoe shop. There he became familiar with the construction of shoes. He learned that, in nearly all shoes a slender strip of steel or iron is inserted lengthwise in the sole to give it the necessary stiffening. This piece of metal is called a shank.

Robinson extracted the shank from one of his shoes. He sharpened it by rubbing it against the stone floor of his cell to a cutting edge.

He opened an artery in his neck, under the left ear, and another artery in his wrist, at the base of his thumb. Then he calmly allowed himself to bleed to death. Thus he was found by the jail guards.

Robinson left a farewell letter to his mother and wife, also one to Sheriff Quinn and his senior counsel, John H. Blanchard. In the latter epistle he summed up the whole grim situation from his standpoint thus:

DEAD AT THIRTY-TWO.

"You're up against a hard game when you've got to die to beat it. It seems to be the easiest solution of the whole difficulty; I wouldn't want to go to the chair for the satisfaction it would give certain people, and life or a long term in prison for manslaughter are worse than death, AND I KNOW WHAT I AM TALKING ABOUT."

Thus died, by his own hand, "Diamond Chip" Robinson at the age of thirty-two years, a man born under an evil star, whose career would seem to justify the old gossip in his home town that he was destined, by pre-natal influence, to a life of violence.

CASHIER TAKES STAND AGAINST HOWARD LEWIS

The trial of T. Howard Lewis, charged with stealing $595.03 from the New York Mutual Life Insurance Companl, was continued today in the Municipal Court before Judge Creed, with John E. Fitzpatrick, assistant cashier of the company, on the stand.

Fitzpatrick is the complainant in the case, and testified today concerning a bookkeeping quirk of the company called the "premium withheld account."

"When an agent steals a premium," he said, "and when he fails to make a return to the company, the amount of the withheld premium is charged against him. I know of instances where accounts with agents are carried for three years in this way."

Professor Reginald Abrey Fessenden of Brookline was called as a witness and said:

"I took out a policy in March, 1913, giving a note for the amount of the premium—$1,028. In six months I paid half this note and renewed the remaindr. In six months more I paid half af the remainder, and my dividends from the company paid the rest. Then I took out another note for my next year's premium."

Building Trades Lockout for London

LONDON, July 29.—The National Builders' Federation decided today to lock out all their employes unless the dispute in the building trades is settled by August 1.

Fund for Families of Irish Riot Victims

DUBLIN, July 29.—There was a rush by thousands here today to subscribe to the fund started by the Lord Mayor for the benefit of the families of Sunday's riot victims.

GIRL GOES MAD ON FRANCONIA; CUTS FOUR MEN

Miss Thorberg Johannsen, steerage passenger on the Cunarder Franconia, which arrived todav from Liverpool, made the greater part of the voyage in a strait-jacket, following a maniacal outburst, in which she dashed among steerage passengers, slashing right and left with a broken tumbler.

Four stewards grappled with her. The girl's insane strength, coupled with the weapon she wielded, was too much for them and their hands, arms and clothing were cut.

Dr. S. P. Hodkinton, the Franconia's surgeon, ran into the melee, grasping for the girl's wrists. With a savage, sweeping blow the girl struck the surgeon on the right hand, cutting a deep gash. Dr. Hodkinton held to the girl, however, and, with the aid of the stewards, overpowered her.

643 Employes Share Gas Company Profits

Fred M. Goodwin has resigned as a director of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. He was elected to represent the employes in the company's profit-sharing plan. A letter sent by President J. L. Richards to all profit sharers of the company shows the results for the year ending June 30, 1914, were unsatisfactory. The company was able to pay only an [illegible] per cent. dividend this year.

President Richards points out that the disappointing results this year were due in part to unfavorable conditions and increased operating expenses. He also thinks employes' lack of efficiency was partly responsible. He urges improved individual effort the coming year. The amount apportioned by the company to the profit-sharing among employes this year was [illegible] among 643 men and women.

Dr. O'Callaghan Dies a Martyr to Science

After nearly a year's illness, which began with blood poisoning and developed into dropsy, Dr. Dennis F. O'Callaghan, nephew of the late Mgr. O'Callaghan of South Boston, died early today at his home, 17 Victoria street, Dorchester. Dr. O'Callaghan was a widely known surgeon and physician. Last Fall, while performing an operation, he contracted septic poisoning through a cut on one side of his fingers and he has never been well since.

Union Boat Rowers Back on Franconia

L. K. Lunt and Roger Cutler of the Union Boat Club crew, which went over to the Henley regatta at London and which was the runner-up against the winning Harvard crew, returned today on the Franconia. Mrs. Cutler was with them. Speaking of the British defeat, Cutler said:

"The British are disgusted with themselves at not having trained a better crew. But they treated the Americans most considerately and did not show any unsportsmanlike feeling at being beaten."

Driver Fined $20 for Racing an Auto

George Quigley of No. 111 Cedar street pleaded guilty today in Newton Court of driving his delivery automobile at an unreasonable rate of speed on Blue Hill avenue. He was fined $20.

"Why did you drive so fast?" asked Judge Kennedy.

"Because a touring car went ahead of me and I didn't want it to keep ahead," replied Quigley.

Psoriasis Cured by a Famous Remedy

Most Troublesome Skin Disease is Promptly Checked

Get a good, firm grip on psoriasis by using S. S. S. the famous blood purifier.

Those extending patches may have defied everything else; you may be discouraged but let S. S. S. bathe your blood and you will quickly observe a wonderful change.

S. S. S. exerts a dominating influence in the myriad of blood vessels that compose the skin.

Its principal action is to assist in that wonderful process whereby the broken down cells in the skin and their deadened nerve threads are rebuilt by new material from a purified and quickened blood stream.

This process goes on every second throughout the body. From the time that S. S. S. enters the blood it has traversed the entire system in about three minutes. Its action is therefore very rapid, never lets up, if used with the same co-operative spirit.

S. S. S. has been a marvel to overcome every form of skin trouble and for a finely illustrated descriptive treatise on the skin, write to The Swift Specific Co., 102 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

The New Yorker, however, gave the "fans" an agreeable surprise in the tenth stanza and gave a fine exhibition of clever footwork and jabbing. He completely outclassed Jasper in this session and hit him almost at will with snappy left jabs and smashing right hand blows. The decision was a draw, and it met with the approval of the "fans."

TERRY BROOKS of this city again defeated Andy Cortes, the Brooklyn lightweight, in a ten-round [illegible] The contest was not nearly so fast as the one these same boys put up a week ago last night, but this was probably due to the fact that both boxers have been busy in the ring during the past few months, and as a result are badly battered up. Brooks landed the best blows and was entitled to the verdict.

"Tiger" Young of New York and Charley Reyers, the South End boxer, fought a [illegible] draw. Young was outweighed by at least twelve pounds.

BRAVES FIGHT TO DOWN CUBS IN FINAL BATTLE

Everybody out. Last chance today to see the Cubs till way off toward the closing hours of the season in late September. Also final opportunity to watch the belligerent Braves assault the works of one team that has been rather easy for them all season long.

When the Cubs come again, there's no telling where they'll roost. They may be champions, or they may be down in the ruck, waiting for the off-stage signal. Just now they are second, an eyelash back of the Giants and as full of go as a rat in a cheese closet.

HAVE ROBBED CUBS OF LEAD.

Were it not for the Braves these same Cubs would now be away out there in front, almost too far to catch. Consequently they vent their spleen for being back a bit—or rather try to—on the Boston battlers. To date, the venting has had the reverse English most of the time.

The tougher and harder the going, the better the Braves have been moving. In the two Cub conflicts to date, they have broken even, but with any luck they would have licked both of them up.

A small matter like a break in luck doesn't bother the Braves a bit though. They'll be out there today pegging away to get the edge on the present series anyway, and be ready to properly receive the Cardinals tomorrow.

These Cards occupy third position, a place very much desired locally as a stepping to higher things. When that's taken care of, the Cubs will be the immediate object of pursuit, unless the Giants by that time happen to be second and consequently a game today will make the later work so much the easier.

JAMES DUE TO WORK.

This of course is based on the way the Stallings stars look at things. That way is a mighty good way for a bunch of players to view matters, as witness their performances in the last couple of South End seances.

It helps players a lot to know they're going to win before they start. If they get a poor jump, they work all the harder to get even.

In like manner it's great for the fans who naturally want nothing better than ball games with a lot of fight sprinkled about.

Out of the Braves' lot these troublous times there's more fight to a square inch than there's liable to be if this big war of the entente and the alliance over across the pond is accepted by the promoters.

Bill James, who has had a couple of days to recover from the sickness that caused his return halt Monday, will start dishing 'em, according to [illegible] Stallings, [illegible] finish the job, too, unless he gets sick again, according to the same boss.

George has acquired the habit of seeing the pitcher he starts go all the way. He gets peeved when anything different occurs. As the pitchers know the manager is peeved, they're generally going the distance.

RED SOX TACKLE WHITE SOX.

For the hostilities, Lavender, Cheney or Humphries are all ready, with the odds on the first named individual, who is going good these days after a rather weak start.

A good afternoon, after a day's layoff, is mighty likely to fill all the corners of the cosey little park, so it might be a very happy idea to leave the office "for the funeral" a little ahead of time.

Out in the West yesterday, the noble Red Sox failed to make it a hundred straight, or something like that, over Cleveland, so gained nothing on the Macks, who finally lost a game after stowing away twelve. However, the Carrigans didn't lose anything, and that helps a whole lot.

They did, though, let the Senatorial corps deploy a bit closer to their baggage train, so to speak. Griffith's gallants are only a game back now, so the Red Sox can't afford to lose many to the White Sox or they'll find themselves down in third.

HARD SERIES FOR CARRIGANS.

This series which clan Carrigan initiates today in the Windy City is likely to be writ large all over the history of the league race a couple of months from now.

If history repeats, the Sox, red ones, are due for a smattering. They've received the same on the last two occasions of Chicago clashes. Those Callahan calamities have kept them out of first place. Another one is liable to sink the ship of hope too deep for dredging purposes.

A reversal of previous form, on the other hand, should have a glorious effect on the Red Sox state of mind. If they can but dump the Chicago hoodoo overboard, they will have a perfect right to feel that their troubles are over.

On all the form in the world, Carrigan has a better team than Callahan. The only thing out is that he just hasn't been able to prove it thus far this season.

Hoping every day for a couple of months for a couple of teams is likely to make one question that "hope springs eternal" stuff. Just the same there are a whole lot of Boston fans who are going to keep right on hoping till the day comes for ordering world's series tickets.

Naturally we must string along.

Brown and Callahan Win.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Young Brown earned a decisive victory over Young Hoffman in their ten-round bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn. In the other ten-round bouts Frankie Callahan beat Harry Pierce and Gene Moriarty and Al Schumaker boxed a draw.

Bouts at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—Johnny Crouse and Willie Herman boxed six rounds at the North Pennsylvania A. C. to a draw. Willie Lucas and Eddie McAndrews boxed six fast rounds to a draw before the Fairmount A. C.

BIKERS IN POSTPONED RACES.

RACING PROGRAM.

Sprint Match — Moretti vs. Cavanaugh.

Motor Paced Race, 20 Miles— Moran, Madono, Mitten.

Tandem Race — Connolly and Drobach vs. Herbert and Barry.

Two-Mile Amateur Handicap —Australian pursuit race for professionals, five-mile open for amateurs; one-mile invitation for amateurs and one-mile professional.

The triple feature card of bike races scheduled for the Revere Cycle Track last evening were postponed on account of the rain and will be run off tonight.

In the big event of the night, the special sprint match, Cesare Moretti, the Italian champion, meets Frank Cavanaugh, the Irish title holder, the first since their clash at Brighton Beach Sunday, when the race was called during the opening heat on account of a fist fight in which the riders participated and which was finally won by Cavanaugh.

Moretti declares the two American riders teamed against him and says he will show the fans tonight how speedy he is.

In the motor-paced event chief interest centres in the work of Madono who will make his first appearance in a long race behind the big machines.

The tandem race is also to be a hummer as the boys are all close rivals.

Defiance Stripped of Her Racing Togs

NEW YORK, July 29.—The work of stripping the Defiance, the yacht built by the Tri-City syndicate for the defence of the America Cup, preparatory to laying her up until next Spring has been completed at City Island.

Her sails, gears and spars have been unshipped and stored in a sail loft, and in a few days she will be hauled up on the beach, a short distance from the place where the famous cup-defender Columbia lies.

NEW PITCHING STARS FOR BOTH BOSTON TEAMS

Both Boston ball teams are strengthening their pitching departments and today the fans are busy looking up the past performances of Vean Gregg who has been taken over by the Red Sox and Lefty Cotrell just purchased by the Braves.

Gregg, who was rated as the star pitcher of the Cleveland club, was secured in trade for three Boston men, Catcher Egan, Rankin Johnson and Fred Coumbe, a right and left-hand pitcher.

In Gregg, Boston gets one of the greatest southpaws in the world, the pitcher whom Eddie Collins recently wrote up as the left-handed Walter Johnson.

Cotrell, the new Braves pitcher, was purchased from the Baltimore International League club. Cotrell was a team-mate of both Shore and Ruth of the Red Sox. He has been a big factor in keeping the Orioles at the top of the International League standing.

Both pitchers are to report at once.

Rockingham Park for Big Field Meet

The championship committee of the N. E. A. A. U. has selected Rockingham Park to hold the New England track and field championships this year, and the date is September 5.

The all-round championships will be held after the National championships, which will take place at Baltimore, September 12.

RED SOX OPEN SERIES TODAY WITH WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, July 29.—The Boston Red Sox, Bill Carrigan's [illegible] team from the Hub, is with us today and the fans are in for some real redhot, right-off-the-bat baseball.

Callahan's men are right on the running, and the Boston boys must fight their hardest to hold their place in the standing, as yesterday's defeat in Cleveland has brought the Senators right up at their heels and a defeat today for the Boston boys means a downward flight.

The final game with the Naps was a hard blow to the Carrigan band, as they had been sailing along pretty smoothly with the Clevelanders in the way chalking up victories, and the White Sox fans are hoping the sudden jolt will hold good today also.

Joe Birmingham's tailenders turned on the team that had trounced them eleven straight times and took them over, 4 to 3.

The Naps had the satisfaction of driving to the bench the one pitcher above all others who has had their number all season. Heretofore when southpaw Ray Collins tossed his glove on the field the Naps were ready to admit defeat, but what a bumping they gave him yesterday.

COAST RIVALS IN BIG COURT GAMES TODAY

By FRED HOEY.

The San Francisco lads, William M. Johnston and Maurice E. McLoughlin, will battle for this year's [illegible] the Longwood Challenge Bowl [illegible] feature event of the tourney at the Longwood Cricket Club grounds this afternoon.

Johnston is present holder of the trophy, but it is hard to figure from past results how his tennis ability will be sufficient to stand off the dashing game played by McLoughlin.

The Longwood Bowl goes to the player winning three legs on it. McLoughlin won two years ago. Last year, while he was playing the Davis Cup matches in England, Johnston came on from Frisco and captured the 1913 leg.

Johnston has no fear of the national champion, but he has a wholesome respect for his offering. McLoughlin played with hardly a flaw yesterday. Close students of the game say it was the most wonderful exhibition of tennis ever witnessed around Boston. Surely McLoughlin had a strong opponent in Murray, but the champion knew too much for the 1914 sensation.

The game this afternoon will be called at 3:30, with either Fred Mansfield or Bill Croker in the referee's chair.

The English aspirants for the Davis Cup devoted the afternoon to vigorous practice while the big matches were in progress.

After a day in town the Davis Cup defenders will pack their rackets and, under the guidance of Walter E. Mace, the trainer, will journey to the Crescent A. C., Bay Ridge, L. I., where they will devote the next few weeks to practice.

There is considerable room for improvement in the play of the Americans and this will be attended to during their stay at Bay Ridge.

Davis Cup Will Stay Here for Another While, Says Wrenn

NEW YORK, July 29.—Predicting that the Davis Cup will remain in this country, Robert D. Wrenn, chairman of the cup committee, stated that he pinned his faith upon Maurice E. McLoughlin.

"To my mind," he said, "McLoughlin was never so good as he is right now. He is physically in perfect condition. His playing is bewildering. He is playing wonderful tennis.

"Bundy is still a trifle heavy, but is getting in trim in his own way. Williams is at the top of his game, and Behr's work is pleasing the committee. We are in for a victory, I think."

President Woodrow Wilson has declined the invitation to witness the international matches at the West Side Club August 13, 14 and 15. Ex-President Roosevelt and Mayor John Purroy Mitchel have accepted invitations.

LIPTON YACHT SHOWS HERSELF GOOD SEA BOAT

HORTA FAYAL, Azores, July 29.—The Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America's cup, arrived here yesterday, having taken seven days and three hours for the voyage from Falmouth, England.

According to those on board, the would-be lifter of the international trophy proved herself an excellent sea boat. In hard blows she took the big seas like a duck and slipped through the water with great speed.

Before the Shamrock bade farewell to the English coast, Colonel Neill, who is making the voyage on board the steam yacht Erin, which is acting as convoy, pressed the challenger hard in order to test her gear and ocean rig.

Everything was found to be in good order and the little racer made good weather out of the hard blow and the drenching rain storm she encountered on the run from Torquay to Plymouth, where she anchored for the night.

It is possible that the Shamrock's boom will be taken off while she is here, as it bangs about so much when she is becalmed. Otherwise the yacht is regarded as having done well, and her performance thus far on her ocean voyage has increased the hope of those on board that she will be successful in carrying out the purpose for which she was built.

Captain Turner, who is acting as skipper, is well satisfied with the yacht's behavior. Half of the crew which has managed the yacht since her departure from England is to be replaced here by the sailors who have been luxuriating on board the Erin.

2nd Round Matches in Shepard Trophy

The second round of match play for the John Shepard, Jr., trophy has two Woodland, two Brae-Burn, one Oakley, one Essex County, one Tedesco and one Belmont Spring golfers left. The results of the first round were announced several days ago.

Edith Declares to Constance She Will Deny Engagement if the Secret Is Out.

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VII.

WHEN, ten minutes after Edith's flight from the drawing room, Constance knocked at her closed door, there was at first no reply.

"Edith," Constance called softly, "let me come in, dear—just for a moment."

Then the key was turned in the lock and Edith faced her cousin, her eyes swollen by crying, her cheeks flushed. She was not crying now. Indeed, the spark of anger in her eyes seemed to have dried up her tears.

"What do you want?" she asked, coldly.

But as Constance entered the room Edith's self-possession deserted her for a moment.

"Oh, Connie!" she exclaimed, covering her face with her hands, "I'm so mortified—so ashamed!"

Closing the door behind her that no chance passer through the hall might overhear the conversation, Constance put her arms about the unhappy girl and drew her close to her.

"Ashamed!" she repeated. "But why, dear Edith? There is nothing to be ashamed of."

"Yes, there is," Edith contradicted, her face still hidden in her hands. "I have let a man play fast and loose with me—have let Tom Morton flatter himself that I care for him, and now he shows me that he cares nothing for me; that he has so little sense of common decency that he will make me the laughing stock of all those people who are coming here tonight. I can't stand it! I tell you I can't stand it!"

"Edith!" Constance remonstrated sternly. "Stop talking like that and listen to me. First of all, we must decide what's to be done about tonight. Then we can talk of poor Tom after that."

"'Poor Tom!'" Edith repeated scornfully. "I am the one to be pitied, not Tom."

But Constance stopped her with a gesture. "It is a mistake," she said, "to talk about any one when one is angry with him—don't you think so? And besides that, dear, let us discuss the matter of the dinner first of all. There's no time to be lost—so gather yourself together. Your mother asked me to talk the matter over with you. I told her you and I would arrange everything, that you were always to be depended upon where pluck and grit were needed."

APPEAL TO PRIDE

The appeal to her pride had the desired effect upon Edith. She raised her head from her hands, and consented to sit down on the divan by Constance and listen to her suggestions.

"Now," the older girl said, "you must remember that nobody who will be here tonight knows that this was to be an engagement dinner, so nobody will expect an announcement of any kind—for all are in ignorance of the state of affairs—all, that is, except Ralph."

The listening girl caught her breath sharply. "Yes," she exclaimed "except Ralph! But what is to be told him?"

"The truth," said Constance decidedly.

"Then I'll tell it to him," declared Edith, a vindictive sound in her voice.

But Constance seemed to ignore this. "Yet," she went on, "if you wish to have your engagement announced this evening it can be done. It will be very easy to explain that Tom was detained in Baltimore by business—in fact we could make something of a joke of the circumstance of the honored man's not being able to get here even though he had made every effort to do so."

She looked at Edith hopefully, but met no response in the gaze which Tom's fiance fixed upon her.

"No," Edith said, "I shall not announce my engagement tonight—not unless the news of it has already got out. If it has, I will deny it. For I am not engaged."

"Oh, my dear," Constance begged, "won't you let that matter rest until tomorrow? Then you can look at it calmly and dispassionately after you have heard Tom's explanation?"

Edith paused a full minute before she spoke. Then she answered with a hardness and lack of feeling that convinced Constance that she was making a tremendous effort at self-control.

"Yes," she said, "I will wait until tomorrow, when I shall decide this matter finally—although I think I know now what my decision will be. It all depends on"——

CONSTANCE SUSPICIOUS

She stopped. "On what?" Constance asked anxiously.

"On what Ralph says about his cousin's business in Baltimore. He knows more than he has told us, I am sure—and I shall get the truth from him."

"Yes," said Constance significantly, "I think Ralph does know more than he has told us about Tom's mission to Baltimore—and more than he is likely to tell us."

"What do you mean?" demanded Edith.

"I would rather not say anything more just now," Constance replied. "I should not have let mere suspicion make me speak as I did. Only I am sure that Tom is honest and true."

"And you don't trust Ralph!" Edith insisted. "You think he is not trustworthy, don't you?"

Constance took the excited girl's cold hand in her warm clasp. "Dear Edith," she said, "I am asserting nothing, except that the man who loves you is good and would not hurt you for the world. Try to trust him, dear!"

"I have trusted him!" Edith retorted, her eyes flashing. "I have trusted him again and again. And you see the result! No, I don't trust him now—and I don't care for him as much as he thinks I do!"

Constance rose with a sigh. "Shall I go down and tell Aunt what we have decided about the dinner—that we shall not announce the engagement since Tom can't be here?" she asked.

"Yes," replied Edith, "please tell her that we will not announce any engagement—unless we have to!"

When Father Speaks

"NOW, as for me," said the serious young man with the comfortable income, "what I find to criticise most in the modern young woman is her terrible, almost insane extravagance."

"Why, Mr. Bickles!" cried the fluffy young woman with the trusting eyes, on whom he was calling, "you surprise me! I think girls are terribly economical these days."

"Well, I don't see where your eyes are, then," declared the young man. "Just look around"——

"Perhaps," said the fluffy girl, deprecatingly, "I am judging by the girls I know and—er—myself I am sure"——

"That may be it," agreed the serious young man. "You see, a man has a wider field to judge from, and I assure you it is enough to make one stop and think when he sees women throwing money right and left for utterly foolish things"——

LEARN A LESSON

"I'd like to have all of them take a look at you," remarked the serious young man, "and learn a lesson. Why can't they dress simply, as you do—just prettily and plainly, and leave off all the folderols that cost so much? That is one thing, Miss Jessie, I have always admired about you—your simplicity in clothes."

"Excuse me," gasped the fluffy girl, emerging at last from her handkerchief. "My throat bothers me so every once in a while and I get these coughing spell. I think you are perfectly wonderful, Mr. Bickles. There aren't many men with your discrimination. All that most of them care about is the general effect. They"——

"Now, the more I look at that little pink gown of yours," the young man with the large income proceeded, "the better I like it. I'd like to use it as an example. Let me jot down the items, so I can use figures when I am talking on this subject."

"Why, Mr. Bickles," protested the young woman. "Really, it's old, and I've forgotten. I do so admire you, though, for your sensible views. If more men felt the same way it would help curb the extravagances you deplore. I'm sure that if I were inclined that way merely listening to you would make me think twice."

THE AWAKENING

"I don't suppose the silk stuff in that pink dress," mused the young man, staring at her with pencil in air, "cost very much, say a dollar a yard! It's so thin it couldn't cost more, surely."

"It's Egyptian gauze," said the fluffy girl, proudly. "But—er—I got it at a bargain," she added, hastily. "I've forgotten——"

"We'll say a dollar, then," said the young man, happily. "And these dewdads around the girdle and the lace edgings—they weren't more than $2 surely. Are they? Such scraps of stuff——"

"I don't remember," said the fluffy girl, hastily. "You know, one can use laces over and over again if they are any good."

"I truly believe I have found an economical girl," said the serious young man with deep interest. "Not that I'd expect a woman to stint herself, but I do dislike unnecessary waste. Jessie, I can't wait any longer! Could you ever——"

"Jessie!" roared a deep bass voice, as the fluffy young woman's father parted the portieres, waving a piece of paper in his hand. "What the—excuse me; I didn't know you had company. But will you tell me what you mean by this new bill from Cerise today, 'Pink gauze frock, $175?' I told you only last week that you couldn't have another dress for months after the last little bill of $260. I won't have it, I tell you. Send it back."

"What's that! You've got it on and can't?"

"I say, Bickles, thank your stars you aren't married, young man."

The Only Way

Sandy and Donald were discussing the domestic infelicities of a mutual friend.

"Ay, ay," said Sandy. "Jamies Thompson has a sair time wi' that wife o' his. They say they're aye quarrelling."

"What else can ye expect?" was Donald's scornful retort. "The puir feckless creature marit after courtin' for only seven year. Man, he had no chance to ken the woman in sich a short time. When I was coortin', I courted for twenty years!"

This little dialogue took place on a railway journey; and in the further corner of the compartment sat an Englishman, listening and much amused.

"And may I ask," he inquired, "if connubial bliss followed this long courtship?"

Donald looked at him reproachfully.

"I tell ye I coorted for twenty year," he said, "and in that time I kent what woman was, and so I didna marry."

"The Cure"

From a Stubbed Toe to a Bruised Heart

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

By NELL BRINKLEY

THE HAVEN—the cure—is the one big sweet word that is soft and tender, brooding and mellow, in all languages: MOTHER—the sure healer for the griefs of a chap from the time he stubs his toe to the black, anguishing day when he stubs the quick of his heart.

When you were an atom of a curly-headed kid you fled to the soft hollow of your mother's shoulder and buried your rainy face in the heaven of her breast with the sorrow of a toe that fairly radiated, so bitterly did it hurt.

Now that you're a great lanky chap it'll work just the same—try it when you're in the griefs and your heart's bruised black.

For she gripped the star-seeing toe and the poor little parent foot in the soft crushed rose of her palm and whispered little things into your hair that only mothers can say (and the language has never been put down in black and white—it has not)—and the pain oozed away!

And now she can hold on tight to your bursting heart and whisper the same soft things if you'll fly to her quick—and that pain, too, will sleep and die by-and-by.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Love at First Sight

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO you believe in love at first sight? Numerous people write and ask me this question, and each and every one shows plainly that they hope I am going to speak words of approval for the sudden feeling which they doubt even while they cherish it.

I do not believe in "love" at first sight. In the charm that attracts at once, in the magnetism that makes itself felt almost before a word has been spoken, in the allure that reaches across tides of lack of knowledge and understanding, I do believe. But that any of these or all together are stable things worthy of the name of "love" I gravely doubt.

Love ought to be based on understanding, knowledge, congeniality and respect. Unless it have a firm foundation it cannot last.

There is little durability or wearing quality to a cobweb. Now the magnetic quality that makes itself felt as the attraction called "Love at first sight" is no more than "a cobweb wet with morning dew" and sparkling delightfully in the early sunlight. When the sun's rays become warm and hard to endure, or when the chill east winds blow, the misty cobweb becomes a dusty, lifeless thing or a chill and sodden mass of gray.

Love at first sight is too often exactly like that. It cannot endure the warmth and friction of daily living or the chill winds of adversity. It is a thing of glamour and of mystery. Understood or analyzed or put to any test of living, it fades away.

If a man is taking a business partner or a woman is hiring a cook, do they plunge in and take some one whose looks they like, or who has a pleasing way of tilting their head? Not at all. Mister Man makes sure of having as his partner some one whose talents dovetail nicely with his own, some one for whom he has admiration and respect, some one with whom he can endure the friction of daily contact. And Madam Housekeeper will have no one as her cook of whose capabilities and qualities she is not sure.

In buying a suit or a dress or a new auto, he studies the workings of that machine and does not decide upon it until he is sure he knows all about it and considers it a "GOOD BUY."

Isn't love as important as any of these things?

Of course it is. And Love isn't worth entertaining unless it is based on actual knowledge and is sure of itself.

At first sight a given man feels more attraction to one girl of a group than to half a dozen others that would assay just as many charms. Well and good and natural enough. But he is not in love with her. He is ready to judge her faults with a lenient mind and to find delight with all her charms. He is in a receptive mood for love. But truly in love he cannot be.

Perhaps some lad's flashing blue eyes and broad shoulders attract a certain lassie the very first second she sees them. She, too, is ready to feel the force of his every good quality. But she should try to judge him with somewhat the same open-mindedness that she would show in her judgment of any one of life's far lesser interests.

The world is sadly full of people who do not wear well. There are numberless lovable scamps or likable vixens on earth. Don't be fooled by them because they exert on you when first you meet a certain charm.

Love ought to be based on mutual knowledge and respect. And these things come as time proves worthiness and congeniality. If they are added to the first attraction, which is generally merely a snare of the senses, they elevate it to a worth while plane.

Don't yield to "love at first sight" until you have investigated it and proven that it is love and not mere fleeting fascination you entertain.

Very Brave

She—Mr. Jones, look at that impudent man on the other side of the street. He has been following us for the last ten minutes.

Jones—Why didn't you tell me so before? I'll teach the impudent puppy a lesson.

Walking boldly across the street, Jones says to the man:

"Look here, Snip, I'm very sorry I've not got the money to pay you for that last suit, but you ought not to follow me up and dun me when I'm trying to capture that girl. She has got lots of money, and if I succeed you will not only get your money but also an order for a wedding outfit.

Snip goes off satisfied.

Returning to the young lady, Jones says:

"I am glad you called my attention to that cowardly scoundrel. I don't think he will ever stare at you again. I had great difficulty in restraining myself."

Open to Misinterpretation

Slowly Betsy and Dennis walked through O'Flannigan's turnip field, and silently seated themselves, side by side, upon the fence surrounding the pigsty.

The shadows deepened. Nothing broke the stillness save an occasional grunt from the interior of the sty.

"Say something," said Betsy, a hint of impatience in her voice.

"'Ow beautiful ye be, Betsy!" whispered Dennis.

Betsy merely edged a little closer.

"Just think!" went on Dennis, thus encouraged. "When I've enough to buy a pig, we'll have a home all o' our own; an' it won't be much longer."

"Oh, Denny," she murmured, a trifle resentfully, "what do I care for pigs? I shan't want a pig when I've got you!"

And the inmate of the sty gave a double grunt.

Jealousy

"Do you admire my hair?"

"Immensely. Won't you tell me where you got it?"

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

SUM of Ma's lady frends was up to the house last nite to a club meeting. Ma wanted Pa to stay hoam & offer them sum suggestions, so Pa staid but he dident want to vary bad.

We want to maik the city moar butiful, sed the ladies to Pa. We want to maik it a place for a artist to paint.

I am affrade thare are sum parts of this city that you cud nevver maik butiful, Pa sed. Sum parts of the city are butiful now, & other parts are beyond fixing.

But our idee is a new & novel one, sed one of the ladies to Pa. We are not going to interfere with the bildings, but we are going to offer prizes every day, if we can get sum milyunaires interested, prizes for the best looking couples on every street. The result will be, she sed to Pa, that thousands of butiful wimmen & slim, handsum men will turn out & be on parade, wich will maik the city moar butiful. The hoamly peepul will be ashamed of themselfs, she sed, & stay in doors. Doant you grasp my idee?

It is a wunderful idee, Pa sed, a wunderful idee. Reely, tho, sed Pa, I cant think of how you are going to git away from two drawbacks to yure plan. The first drawback is to git the milyunares interested, Pa sed, & the second drawback will be to git any cuppel who think they are hoamly. Taik me, for instens, sed Pa. I may not be a Apollo, but I think me & my wife have a good chanst to git a prize.

Yure wife wud have a chanst, sed one of the ladies but you are too fat. We won't give any of the prizes to fat men & that is a good thing in another way, too, she sed. It will have a ten-dency to keep fat men off the streets. A fat man taiks up twice as much room as a slim man.

Pa got kind of red in the face. I doant know, he sed. I have always been a littel portly, but sumhow I have always got along very well with the dis-serning members of the fair sex. I dident think much of yure plan at first, he sed to the ladies, but now that I know you are going to dis-crim-inait aggents fat men the plan is sure to be a failure. Fat men are always popular, he sed, & any movement wich is took aggents them is sure to be bad for the skeem you speek of. Thackeray the novelist was fat, Pa sed, & old Sam Johnson was fat, & they was very popular with the ladies.

Well, times has changed, sed one of Ma's frends, & the day of the slender man is here. The kind of men wimmen love to see, she sed, are men like the ones you see painted on tailor sines. It is all rite for them to have broad shoulders, she sed, but a broad stummick—nevver.

I always loved my husband moar beekaus he was chubby, sed Ma. I wuldent have him a pound differnt than he is for anything in the world.

My husband is chubby, too, sed two of the other ladies, but I offen wish he was slimmer. He puffs wen he is climbing a hill.

Yes, sed sum of the other wimmen, & fat men snoar at nite.

After they was all gone Pa looked in the big glass & sed to Ma, Well, deer, I guess nobody loves a fat man except a cannibal.

Lost Forever.

Little things can be very trying at times, especially when they happen to you. Mr. Fry thought something like this one wet morning, he could not find his umbrella. Like most married men, he believed in the maxim, "When in trouble blame your wife."

"I say, Mary," he shouted, "what on earth has happened to my new umbrella? I brought it home last night and now it's gone; and, of course, it's raining like mad!"

"Why, it's hardly raining at all," said Mary. "But last night it was simply pouring when the vicar left, and so I lent him your brolly."

"What an asinine thing to do! I shall never see it again now, so I may as well buy another today."

"How can you be so wicked, Percival? As if the vicar would stoop to stealing your umbrella!"

"Stoop to stealing it be hanged! I borrowed it from him a couple of months ago!"

Bad Writing

F. C. Philips, in his book, "My Varied Life," tells an amusing 'bad writing' story. The late Sir George Honeyman was an awful writer, and on one occasion he sent down from the bench to a friend of his, a leading lawer, a little note. Not being able to make head or tail of it, the lawyer in question scribbled something undecipherable upon a half sheet of note paper and passed it up to the judge. Sir George looked somewhat annoyed, and when the court rose he spoke to his friend, and said:

"What do you mean by this? I asked you to come and dine with me tonight."

"Yes," said the lawyer, "and I replied that I should be extremely glad to do so."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU FOOLISH GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and deeply in love with a young man a few years my senior, but my folks are very much against him, the reason being that he comes from a very low family, and his brother is a convict sentenced to a long term in prison for robbery and assault. He only earns about $8 per week, but he has some chance of advancement.

I know very well that my people are right, as I come from a very respectable family, but still I do not know what to do, as I love him very much.

HEARTBROKEN.

YOUR head counsels one thing and your heart another. My dear, let your head control.

The young man may not be responsible for his brother's sins, but you will be responsible if there proves to be a taint in the blood for a coming generation to inherit. But, be that as it may, you are too young to put your wishes against your parents' will.

OFF WITH THE OLD LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have been keeping company with a young man for the past year and a half. I am only finding out now that we cannot agree and I am not sure whether I love him or not.

He has a friend who asked me to go with him about two weeks ago, and then I thought I was too young and told him so. Since then he has not paid much attention to me, as he knows I am going with his friend.

Now that I am older, I feel sure I love this young man better than the one I am going with.

VIRGINIA.

REMEMBER the adage, "Off with the old love before you are on with the new." See less of the first lover. You will do both him and yourself an injustice if you continue to accept his attentions, feeling as you do. Then trust to the god of love, who watches over girls who are honest and true, to bring the second man to you.

BEYOND SUGGESTION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-two, and in love with a young girl of eighteen, who has declared her love for me, but we cannot agree because of the difference in our religion, she being a Catholic, and very religious, while I am a Jew, and not religious. She insists that she cannot give up her religion.

Would you advise me to drop her, or wait until she is older?

A QUESTION of difference in creed is too serious for any third party to settle.

As a general rule, the man gives up his church, for the reason that a woman's church means more to her. She is naturally more devout.

I hope you will not make a decision in haste, remembering that it is serious, and for life.

Gains New Complexion By Peeling Her Skin

"Keep still, sad heart, and cease repining; behind the clouds is the sun still shining." I was forcibly reminded of these lines when, after months of fretting over my ugly complexion, I found how easy it was to remove the cloudy, muddy skin and bring forth a bright, new complexion. I got an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at my druggist's and used this like cold cream every night for two weeks, washing it off mornings. Lo and behold! That old skin had all peeled off! The healthy young skin underneath gave me a complexion as pure, white and soft as a young girl's. I experienced no discomfort, the skin came off so gradually and gently. Several friends have been similarly benefited. I'm sure anyone whose skin is soiled, tanned, withered, blotchy, pimply or freckled, can acquire the loveliest complexion imaginable by using this remarkable [illegible]. Another treatment that brought more sunshine was one to remove wrinkles. A face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel, [illegible] every line. It's wonderful.—Julia Orff in The Queen.

An Easy Way To Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This masterstroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol, and has been termed the greatest of flesh builders. Sargol aims through its regenerative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Your druggist has it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were stronger by afternoon, markets in this country recovering in a measure from the big break of yesterday. Early transactions were at recessions, but sentiment changed during the morning. It is believed that the worst has happened. In Berlin, regarded as the European cyclone centre, there was a change for the better. It was manifested by buying orders there. In New York, it is said, all weak accounts have been eliminated. The London settlement caused no failure of importance, it is understood. There is great concern as to the outcome in Paris, however.

By afternoon the New York list had shifted from extreme weakness to irregularity. Among gains were Atchison 1, Canadian Pacific 1¾, Southern Pacific ⅝, New Haven 1⅝, American Telephone ⅝, American Can ½, Steel ⅛, Northern Pacific 1, Baltimore & Ohio 1¼, Union Pacific ¾, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅛ and New York Central 1⅛. Declines included Reading ⅛, Lehigh Valley 1, Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting 1½ and Great Northern preferred 1⅛. Unchanged issues included St. Paul and Missouri Pacific. Some of these issues had showed big losses during the morning. Steel had sold as low as 54 and Amalgamated as low as 55¾. By afternoon Steel was up to 55¾ and Amalgamated to 58½.

The rally in Boston was less pronounced. Afternoon gains here included New Haven 1⅝ and Butte & Superior ⅞. Among losses were Alaska Gold ⅝, Boston & Maine ½, Elevated 1, United Fruit ½, American Telephone ¼, Calumet & Arizona 1¼, Granby ⅝, North Butte ¼, Superior ½, Osceola 2 and Shoe ⅝.

At the close in London Reading wa sup 1½ and there were fractional gains for Chesapeake & Ohio and Denver & Rio Grande common. The largest losses by Americans there were Amalgamated 2, Anaconda 2¾, Atchison 3⅜, Baltimore & Ohio 1⅜, Canadian Pacific 6¼, St. Paul 3, "Katy" 1⅛, Northern Pacific 1⅜, Southern Pacific 2¼, Union Pacific 3⅝, and Steel 1⅛.

OPEND AT A DECLINE.

Both the New York and Boston markets were weak at the opening, and declines i nthe former averaged large. Within a few minutes there was an improvement and the trend was upward on the whole until noon when there was another brief recessional movement. It is reported that there was considerable buying on investment account when prices were at the lowest. This helped cause the rally. Business was on a tremendous scale. First hour transactions in New York totalled around 535,000. For the morning the total was about 817,000. There was a firmer tone to the Boston market at the end of an hour, and most issues had recovered all or part of early losses. But around the opening some new low prices were touched. Amalgamated, Steel and American Telephone were among the most active issues. The further slump in London copper warrants did not have much influence upon copper shares here. It is said that large producers have stopped quoting electrolytic and will not sell under 13⅜ cents a pound. Sales at 13 cents were made in New York yesterday, it is reported. In spite of the war scare, it is understood there is demand for spot in Europe.

FOREIGN CABLES GLOOMY.

First cable advices from Europe promoted gloom. Later ones were more cheerful. It is reported that the financial situation in Paris is critical, that Berlin banks suspended monthly settlements and that operations on the London stock exchange were practically suspended. Selling orders from the Continent were sent to New York, which is described in one dispatch as being at this moment "the world's safety valve." The Berlin situation has improved and some buying of stocks by Germans is reported.

When consols declined to 69½ in London, the lowest record price for them as a 2½ per cent. security, a government broker began buying and they rallied above 70.

At midday the New York list was irregular and the effect of bargain buying was more apparent. Many issues showed good gains. The market had withstood a tremendous strain and in Europe it is regarded as being in a better monetary position than any in the world. The present crisis found it with its values liquidated close to bed rock. Some of the most astute judges think that a rebound is coming and that the present opportunities may not be offered again within a lifetime. It is believed by them that the worst that can happen in Europe or in this country is now being discounted. By noon call money was quoted at 5 per cent in New York.

The Chicago wheat pit and the New York cotton exchange were excited ,but there was a steadier tone to the latter. Wheat gyrations at Chicago were the most violent within memory.

The gold engaged for exportation yesterday totalled $14,700,000 ,bringing the total for the year up to last night to $107,650,000.

TRADERS WATCH GERMANY.

When markets opened today traders, business men and financiers the world over were watching Germany. It was thought everywhere that upon Emperor William largely depends how wide the area of the European war will be. In England it is almost universally believed that he has been building a navy, increasing his army and watching for years for an opportunity to crush Great Britain and become a greater world power than the latter. There is fear throughout British dominions that Emperor William sees now the chance he has awaited so long—that he thinks that with civil war threatened, or imminent, in Ireland, the empire ruled by his maternal grandmother for so long is less prepared for war than it has been for many years, or may be in his lifetime. For years the British have been expecting that eventually they would have with Germany the most momentous conflict in the history of kingdom or empire since Spain sent an Armada to the realm of Queen Elizabeth. In the German navy for years officers have fervently drank to the toast "Der tag—to the Day!" The greatest question in the world at this hour is, "Has the day arrived?"

PRICES IN LONDON.

As was expected Americans ruled lower in the London market today. There was, in fact, the narrowest market for them there. As was the case yesterday, there was little chance to dispose of securities anywhere in Europe. Many failures in London were reported by cable today. So far they comprise the brokerage house of Leaver, Mayer & Co. Bower & Co., stock exchange dealers; Eiser & Co., brokers; Clement Theodore Alers Hankey, clerk; White, Metaxa & Co. and G. H. Craven doing business under name of Tilford & Jackson, brokers.

Canadian Pacific was much stronger in London by afternoon, being quoted there then at 167½, or 5½ above the closing price in New York yesterday. Compared with yesterday's New York finals, Americans in London by afternoon today showed declines as follows: Chesapeake & Ohio 2⅝, Baltimore & Ohio 4⅝, Erie ⅛, Steel 5⅝, Union Pacific 3⅝, Southern Pacific 3¼, Southern Railway ⅞, Reading 2½, Pennsylvania 2⅛, New York Central ⅞, Northern Pacific ⅛, Norfolk & Western 1⅛, and Missouri, Kansas & Texas 1⅛.

As long as New York remains the one stock market in which securities can be sold, it will be under great pressure probably from Europe. One estimate places the amount of European investments in the United States at $6,000,000,000. More than half of this represents holdings in Great Britain. Germany is supposed to have a billion dollars invested here, Holland three-quarters and France half a billion dollars.

The Hamburg, Amsterdam, Liverpool, Montreal and Toronto stock exchanges are close, while those in Berlin and Paris may shut down.

Alarming Death Rate From

CANCER

75,000 die yearly; of this number about 30,000 die from cancer of stomach and liver; 12,000 of the uterus; 10,000 of the intestines and 8,000 of the breast. Between 1880 and 1910 the cancer rate in Massachusetts rose from 42 to 85.

If you have a lump or sore in the breast, face, lip or on any part of the body, come here at once, or send for symptom blank and 76-page booklet. We never use the knife; our treatment is by absorption, and that it is successful is proven by hundreds of cured patients.

A Chance for Militia and Regulars to Fight

In a Good Cause, Against a Pestiferous Enemy, THE ARMY WORM

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

At this moment in many parts of the United States you may see "gallant boys" in khaki uniform marching up and down, manoeuvring, camping out, IMITATING war.

In many parts of the United States also you may see another army engaged in REAL war.

That is the army of the army worm. He is a soldier that knows no peaceful manoeuvring, but fights from birth to death, and does more harm to men in our day than all of the armies put together.

The young army worms fall out upon the ground in thousands as the hay is lifted in the barn. They swarm in the cut hay fields. They travel like a regular army toward the cornfield. THEY ARE ON THE MARCH NOW IN MANY PLACES. If they are not fought effectively the expected great national crop of thousands of millions of bushels of corn will become a small one.

What is needed to fight the army worm is intelligence and MEN.

President Taft fought forest fires with the regular army and was applauded.

The Governors of the army-worm States might well put the militia to work fighting the army worm, and be applauded also.

To fight the worm the simplest plan is to dig or plow a trench in the march of the worms moving from the hayfields to the corn and other crops. The worms on the march do not stop. They fall into the ditch, and cannot crawl up the steep sides.

They are destroyed by pouring in oil and burning, or more simply by dragging through the ditch a very heavy log that crushes the worms and destroys them.

Fighting army worms would perhaps not be exciting or amusing for the militia, but it would be extremely USEFUL.

Digging trenches is excellent practice for "gallant boys." If they ever get into real war they will have to dig trenches and dig hard. It would be excellent practice to fight the army worm with trench digging.

The horses, as many as drive, could be used to make temporary trenches with deep plows, THE STRAIGHT SIDE OF THE FURROW TOWARD THE FIELD TO BE PROTECTED.

The scouts among the brave boys could learn from the farmers where the worm enemy is most numerous and direct the trench diggers and the plowing brigade in the right direction.

The suggestion that militia and soldiers be used in real and useful war against the army worm is by no means humorous, but extremely serious. The people pay for the army, regular and militia, and the fighting forces could not do better work than protect the nation against devastation of the crops.

If we had a hundred thousand brown Japanese in the country burning up crops, the soldiers would get to work promptly.

They should get to work just as promptly when we have thousands of millions of army worms destroying the crops more effectively than any Japanese could do.

But for the present, anyway, the people will have to fight the army worm for themselves. The pest has appeared in large numbers in Massachusetts and the State Board of Agriculture has prepared instructions for carrying on the war.

Here are the instructions:

When detected, all efforts should be centred on keeping the worms out of crops not yet attacked, and confining their injury to as small an area as possible. As a barrier to their progress, either make a dust furrow of road dust and place around material liable to be attacked or plow a deep furrow ahead of the worms' line of march. Put poisoned bran mash in this furrow. This should be made of 1 pound of paris green, 25 pounds of middlings or bran, moistened with a quart of cheap molasses and 1 gallon of water.

The best way to kill them in large numbers is to spray crops which they have not yet attacked with a heavy dose of paris green, 2 pounds to 60 gallons of water. This strength will not burn the leaves, but in order to be effective the crop or strip of grass which is selected must be sprayed copiously. Paris green is better than arsenate of lead for this purpose, because it washes off more easily, and so will not injure the feeding value of the crop. Where a town is severely attacked with the army worm the farmers should combine and use a power sprayer, as much more effective work can be done in this way. Get the local moth superintendent to co-operate by loaning the town sprayer, where there is one.

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Help the Castle Island School

The good people who are supporting the Castle Island School need $500 more to continue that splendid institution for the rest of the Summer.

Readers, do you know what the Castle Island School is doing? Here is the description of this work given by the committee:

> "The 150 children (and as many more as our resources will care for) are between the ages of seven and eleven years, all anaemic or otherwise below par. They go to Castle Island five days in the week, through July and August, and remain from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The invigorating air of the sea, the devoted care and skillful teachers and nurses, the right kind of food, the daily hour of sleep in the open air, the weekly sea bath and the attendant lessons in hygiene tend to an almost sure return to health and vigor, and readiness for school life in the Autumn. In a word, the school provides not only the important ounce of prevention, but the inestimable pound of cure.
>
> "They wade, they play games, they dance, they study, they rest, and, last but not least, they eat to their hearts' content of food well chosen and well cooked."

The committee which has charge of this splendid work has already raised most of the money necessary to carry it on through the Summer months. All that is needed is five hundred dollars more. If every person who reads this editorial would contribute ever so little, that amount would be subscribed many times over. Can any one spend money any better?

Please send your contributions to W. G. Wendell, treasurer, No. 60 State street, Boston.

Saving Health ☙ ☙ ☙ ☙ By Rev. C. F. Aked, D. D., LL. D.

THE phrase is consecrated by many centuries of happy usage. Health saves. Health and holiness are closely allied in etymology and in human experience. Holy is nothing in the world but the whole with the suffix "y." The spelling of the word whole with a "w" is new. There is no trace of it in Middle English speech earlier than the year 1500. The word whole, meaning "complete," was spelt according to its derivation from the word "heel," our word "heal," which means to make whole. Heal and hale and whole, health and wholeness, wholesome and holy, are in etymology and in essence one. "Saving health" is a glorious phrase because saving health is a glorious thing.

Each day sees some cherished illusion knocked on the head. Amongst the latest to be remorselessly brained by the rough hand of the scientific investigator is the notion that the country is healthier than the city. A modern, a very modern novelist, represents a London physician as scoffing at what he termed the "neurasthenia joke."

The belief that health is deteriorating through the rush and pleasure of life in the big cities he held to be preposterous. He paced up and down his consulting room smiling, tapped his patient on the shoulder with a stethoscope, and he said:

"We're improved; we're improving. Why, my dear sir, what was old age in the mediaeval centuries? A man, a king, was worn out, crippled with rheumatism, too heavy to mount his horse before he was forty-five. As to the common people, they died like flies; they had no stamina, no power of resisting disease. Town life isn't unhealthy; the art of sanitation did not begin till the towns grew large.

"Don't you see, my dear sir, your problem is to breed disease-resisting men, and you won't do it from men who mope about fields and hedges. No! modern life is a question of towns."

* * *

This is what science is bidding us do; breed a race of disease-resisting men and women. Our bodies afford to the eye of the bacteriologist a series of great battlefields, and on every field a great battle every moment of our life is proceeding.

Germs of diphtheria, of typhoid, of tuberculosis are in the air, and no human being can get away from them. Germs of diphtheria, typhoid, of tuberculosis and of a dozen other fiends are under the tongue at this moment. And along the whole length of the body and in all its parts many a merry war is being waged.

In the blood are certain gallant fighting fellows, white warriors called leucocytes, who watch out for intruders, swoop down on invaders, and defend our health with their lives. Our freedom from sickness does not depend upon ability to get away from the disease-producing germ, for that we cannot do. It turns upon our ability to resist him when he makes his attack.

If one is in the condition which is known as being "run-down," if, that is to say, the power of resistance is low, then it may be the heart or the brain or the stomach or the eye which begins to fail. But it fails not because the organ is attacked, for everything is always being attacked, but because the vital forces are too low to offer a successful resistance.

* * *

We do not believe nowadays that we can successfully defend the trees of the forest against their enemies by whitewashing them. The man of science comes along, bores into the heart of the tree, injects some chemical solution into its sap, which interpenetrates into every branch and leaf and makes the tree strong to resist.

We do not shut up into a room like a hothouse the person who in the old days was doomed to die as a consumptive.

We send him to the Sierras or the Rockies or the Alps! We tell him to throw off those idiotic swathings and wraps and let the sunshine have a chance. We tell him to let the mountain breezes play upon him. If it is going to rain or snow, and he is afraid of taking cold, we stare in astonishment and tell him to walk in the snow until he is glowing with delightful warmth and to go out in the rain and get wet through; he can change his clothes when he comes back.

In heaven's name, we demand, what harm can it do to get wet through? There is a salvation in the sunshine. Health and happiness, wholeness and holiness are the mountain air. There is life in a breath of the brave salt sea.

The Murder of Love Is Commonest of Crimes

And All Too Frequently the Death Wound Is Not Inflicted by a Stab, but by Pin Pricks

By DOROTHY DIX

IT is a sad and a grotesque fact that love is oftener done to death in the house of its friends than it is slain by enemies from the outside.

When we see a man and a woman who are madly in love with each other when they marry, in the course of a few years land in the divorce court, or else arrive at a state where although they stay together we can hear their matrimonial fetters clank as they walk, we are apt to rush to the conclusion that some big and tragic wrong has awakened them from love's young dream.

Not at all. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred an autopsy on the body of their dead love would show that the deceased had come to its end, not by a clean dagger wound that struck through its heart, but that it had been pricked to death by pin points.

When all is said, it is easier to forgive a big wrong than it is to put up with constant little irritations. It is the constant dropping of water that wears away stone, and the ceaseless little shattering of ideals and rending of illusions that at last shatter domestic happiness.

Take the woman, for instance, who adores her husband so that she is frantically jealous of him. He loves her, and he feels that she might trust him, and have some respect for his loyalty and honor. Abstractly she does, but when it comes to the concrete she cannot endure to see him show another woman even ordinary civility. When they go out if he does not act like a boor to every woman they meet, there are tears and hysterics when they get home.

She is even jealous of all other women collectively and goes through his pockets for letters in feminine handwriting. She calls him up over the phone to see that he is really at his office, and makes herself a pest and a nuisance by suspecting a mythical other woman.

The result is inevitable. She could not kill love quicker if she'd gone out gunning for it with a gatling gun. Her husband resents her lack of faith. She bores him with her reproaches, and on the principle that one might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb, she often does drive a man who would have otherwise been faithful to hunt up some more reasonable woman for solace.

Then there is the woman who makes her love a prison house in which a man is always conscious of the bars and bolts. She makes the marriage ceremony deprive him of his liberty and thenceforth she arrogates to herself the right to police his every movement. He cannot move from his own fireside without giving a complete account of all he did, and said, and thought, and furnishing an alibi for every hour.

It is not reasonable to suppose that because a man takes a wife he changes all of his tastes and habits, and no longer finds pleasure in any of the amusements to which he was accustomed, and yet this kind of a wife never even gives her husband an evening off in which to enjoy himself in his own way. She makes of him a liar because he has to tell untruths to square himself at home, although he would be truthful enough if she would only stand for the truth. This woman kills love because it is not in human nature for anybody to love his jailer.

There is also the woman who kills love by her complaints. She forgets that she married of her own free will and accord, and that she knew that she was marrying a poor man. She makes the deadly mistake of striking at a man's vanity by bemoaning the fact that she could have married better, and lamenting that she can't have as fine things as some of her neighbors do.

She kills love by wounding her husband's self-love. No man ever forgives a woman for that.

Men kill their wives' affection for them by indifference. There is a theory that a woman who once loves a man can't stop.

She just goes on loving him anyhow. This is a mistake. A woman's love can be starved to death very quickly, and when a man absorbs himself in business and ceases to show his wife any attention or tenderness, her affection is mighty apt to turn up its little toes to the daisies.

Men kill their wives' love by sheer brutality. There are husbands who think that marriage gives them the right to criticize their wives, and say things to them that they wouldn't dream of saying to any other woman on earth. Vinegar catches no more flies after marriage than it did before, and the wife who has to stand for insults from the bully that she is married to learns to hate him and fear him just as any other woman would who was forced by circumstances to endure a cad.

Men kill their wives' love by being parsimonious to them and by making the women who spend their lives doing the dreary round of domestic work feel that they are slaves who are grudgingly fed and clother for their services. No love was ever robust enough to survive the question: "What did you do with that quarter I gave you last week?"

Men kill their wives' love by petty tyranny and by sheer injustice. The man who takes advantage of his wife's financial dependence on him to treat her as he would not his stenographer, or his cook, or any woman employe who was free to get up and leave, doesn't shine as a hero of romance in her eyes any longer. He just looks the poor, miserable, contemptible coward he is.

Love is an exotic than can only live in the warm air of a happy home. It cannot exist in an atmosphere full of bickering and quarrels, nor in one that is surcharged with the querulous complaints and temper of a woman or the surliness of a man.

Yet there are women who deluge their husbands with reproaches and who nag them every minute the unfortunate men are at home, and there are men who never speak a pleasant word in their own houses and at whose approach laughter is hushed and the very cat takes to the cellar.

And these people have the nerve to complain that their husbands and wives do not love them, and that their homes are unhappy!

And they never realise that they have murdered love, and with their own hands have destroyed their happiness.

What Women Should Give State

By EDWIN MARKHAM

WILLIAM SENECA SUTTON, writing thoughtfully upon "Problems in Modern Education," considers the education of women. Speaking of the modern woman he remarks:

"Of what should the modern woman's education consist?

"Let us take it for granted, without argument, that woman's education should fit her to discharge readily and effectively and agreeably, duties in the institutional life of which she is to become a part; and that these duties will relate to the home, to civil society, to the State, to the industrial order, and to the church.

"The proper training of the home-maker and the home-keeper involves the mastery of knowledge relating to the physical, intellectual and moral development of children.

* * *

"The proper direction of the home, furthermore, requires economic qualifications of no mean order. The term wife is sometimes said to mean weaver, and, truly, the mistress of a domestic establishment has much to do in weaving the fortunes of her husband; for she it is who not only regulates the consumption and expenditures of the household, but who, also, not infrequently, assists generously in swelling its productive income.

"The second institution in which woman must live and in which she should be prepared to contribute intelligent service is the State. It is true that, in only a few of the States of this Union, she is given the privilege of directly participating in the direction of governmental affairs; but voting and holding office are but two of the many privileges of American citizenship.

* * *

"While these two things are, for the most part, denied to woman, she may freely enjoy all the others; and even these two she may at times exercise by proxy.

"Every department of our government — legislative, executive, judicial—is of as tremendous importance to the feminine, as it is to the masculine, portion of our people, and woman is, therefore, clearly entitled to such training in history and political science as will enable her to reach a rational comprehension of the theory of government and the duties of patriotic citizenship. One distinctive doctrine of modern education is that every individual, male or female, finds in his or her own life the end of his or her existence, thereby becoming freed from bondage to any institution.

"We have in this country at last reached the definite conclusion that woman should stand erect in her own right, and that she may justly refuse longer to remain in slavery to ever so noble an institution as the home, and may, without humiliation and without loss of reputation or self-respect, manifest her great concern in the management of civil affairs."
